Nazis Unleash Rocket Guns as 6000 Planes Hit Europe

Hot Barrage At West Wall Downs 16 U. S. Aircraft

8000 Tons of Bombs Dropped by Raiders; 21 Rail Centers, 15 Airports Blasted

London, May 25 (AP).—More than 6000 Allied planes attacked German airdromes and transportation centers with over 8000 tons of bombs today in a crushing two-way assault, during which American Fortresses and Liberators, storming the West Wall, ran into an unprecedented concentration of exploding rockets thrown up by suddenly increased ground defenses.

At least 21 rail centers and 15 airfields upon which Germany has been leaning heavily for defense of Fortress Europe were pounded in this seventh day of furious air onslaught, a day in which the attacks ranged from Toulon in southern France, to the German capital itself.

From 750 to 1000 American heavies based in Britain slammed explosives on four airfields, nine freight yards and other military targets in northeastern France and Belgium, while another American daylight fleet from Italy attacked Carnoules rail yards, 15 miles northeast of the Mediterranean port of Toulon and the rail center of Lyons, 200 miles farther north, the funnel to the southeastern French defense zone.

Nine Nazis Destroyed

A communique reported nine enemy aircraft were destroyed in the sweep against the West Wall, against a loss of four American bombers and 12 fighters, victims of strong antiaircraft fire and a spectacular rocket defense.

The Luftwaffe, frayed from coping with Wednesday's simultaneous assaults on Berlin and Vienna and Wednesday night's RAF armada of 500 heavy bombers, did not risk their air force to defend the latest targets, but augmented antiaircraft batteries throughout the occupied lands threw up a terrific barrage of flak, including green and black fields of exploding rockets.

No reports were available as yet on the attack by the Mediterranean force on southern France.

Heavies attacking northern France and Belgium were covered by between 500 and 750 American Mustangs and Lightnings of the Eighth and Ninth Air Forces. RAF and Allied Mustangs of the Expeditionary Air Force also provided escort and flew supporting sweeps.

Hit Railroad Yards

The bombers struck at marshaling yards at Mulhouse, Belfort, Sarreguemines, Metz, Thionville, Charleroi and Blainville in France; Brussels and Liege, in Belgium, and airfields near Nancy and Bretigny in France, and Antwerp and Brussels in Belgium. At the same time fighters attacked more than 36 locomotives and strafed German troops in a field after they had fled from a troop train.

The attacks matched the day's assault for May 20, when 6000 planes dropped an estimated 8000 tons of bombs, but on that day all the attacks were made by bombers based in Britain.

The tremendous artillery barrage sent curious rocket puffs bursting all around the bombers. One returning flier reported it as a sort of corkscrew effect, "leaving a train of white smoke," and exploding into a "long yellow streak covering the whole height of the formation."

As the American bombers

Liquor Men Fined $40,000, Jailed For Price Hiking

Catlettsburg, Ky., May 25 (AP).—Federal Judge Mac Swinford today fined four associates of Josselson Bros., Inc., an Ashland liquor firm, $40,000 on charges of conspiracy to violate price ceilings.

Besides the fine, declared by an OPA spokesman the heaviest penalty ever imposed in Kentucky under the Emergency Price Control Act, the defendants also got short prison sentences.

The four, including Alex Josselson, general manager; Harry Bearman and Morris Josselson, salesmen, and J. R. Harbison, bookkeeper, pleaded guilty to accusations of charging more than $18,000 in excess of ceiling prices for whisky last year.

Protests Halt School Rite for Argentine Hero

By David Karr

Efforts of Argentine diplomats to use Washington school children to gain a spurious indorsement of the pro-Fascist Buenos Aires dictatorship failed yesterday when a chorus of angry protests caused cancellation of Argentine Independence Day ceremonies in which McKinley High School students were slated to participate with Senor Don Adrian C. Escobar, the unrecognized Argentine Ambassador to the United States.

The cancellation was announced yesterday afternoon by Frank C. Daniel, principal of the school.

Mrs. C. A. West, adviser to the Spanish club of McKinley High told the story of how the Argentinian diplomats attempted to use Washington school children for propaganda purposes. She said the Spanish club has decided to lay a wreath on the statute of Jose San Martine, the "George Washington of Argentina," at 4th and E sts. nw., yesterday as a demonstration of the friendship which the people of the United States have for the people of the Argentine.

"There was no suggestion that we had anything but contempt for

Police, Press Nab Dog After 5-Hour Chase

Two police scout cars and four cars, loaded with reporters and photographers participated in a wild five-hour chase yesterday trailing a suspected mad dog, said by police to have bitten about 25 other animals, before it was finally cornered in the home of its owner, Mrs. Olga Gasque of 111 Massachusetts ave. nw.

The chase began at 10 a. m., when a call came through to No. 5 Precinct that a dog had almost killed another at 125 15th st. se. Sergt. Joseph P. Kirby and Pvts. E. M. Hedrick and W. E. Winfield started in pursuit of the animal in squad car No. 51.

From then on it became a question of dashing to the various addresses coming in over the police radio from dog owners who said their pets had just been bitten by a small black mongrel.

Newsmen Join Chase

By this time reporters and photographers had oined the chase.

At 11 a. m. Pvt. Robert Krahling of No. 5 Precinct, came across the animal attacking another dog at 10th and C sts. se. When he started to wield his night stick, Krahling said, the mongrel fled.

Then in quick succession calls came from 1000 13th st. se., 1400 Potomac ave. se., 300 10th st. se., 630 G st. se., 9th st. and North Carolina ave. se., Potomac and Kentucky aves. se., and then from the 100 block of 15th st. se.

At the 10th st. address the dog was reported to have nearly killed a cat; at the 9th st. and North Carolina address he was said to have attacked three dogs in quick succession.

After that came calls from other localities where the dog was seen: 3d and E sts. ne., 5th and E sts. ne., and 3d st. and Massachusetts ave. ne. Finally the call came through that the animal was seen to enter the Gasque house.

Mrs. Gasque said the dog had never before been known to be

Court Told Wife's Acts Crazed Miller

4 Judges, 17 Others Testify That Lawyer Was Man Distraught Because of Worry

By Winifred Nelson

An old man crazed by thoughts of his wife's infidelity, raising his blue-veined hands over a sacred candle in his law office and beseeching God, "Oh, try to help me," was one of the pictures presented in District Court yesterday of Robert I. Miller, attorney accused of shooting Dr. John E. Lind in Washington's love-triangle killing.

Twenty-one character witnesses, including four Washington judges, took the stand during the day and declared Miller was a man so fraught with worry that he did not know what he was doing or saying—a man who shouted at his associates and cut short his clients.

The person responsible for Miller's prosecution, First Assistant United States Attorney John W. Fihelly, was one of those coming to the defendant's aid to testify that Miller's reputation for peace and good order was "the best."

4 Testify as to Sanity

At least four witnesses made the electric statements that they believed Miller had become of unsound mind from worry, and they cited incidents of his strange behavior before the crime in support of this contention. The suggestion of insanity was half of a double plea set up by Defense Attorney H. Mason Welch in his opening statement.

Mrs. Katherine Townsend, secretary of 67-year-old Miller, who said she once threatened to leave his employment when his distracted actions became "intolerable," gave a vivid, first hand account of Miller, drawn from a day-to-day contact with him.

Missing Links Supplied

"Every morning after he came into the office, he lighted the blessed candle," she testified. "Then he walked about the room with the badge of the Sacred Heart in his hand and a rosary. I had been told why he was so troubled."

Her testimony also furnished several links that had been missing from the chain of circumstances surrounding the shooting of Lind

Men Killed, Hurt In Pearl Harbor Ammunition Blast

Pearl Harbor, May 25 (AP).—Some lives were lost, a number of men were injured and "several small vessels" destroyed by an explosion and fire last Sunday when ammunition was being unloaded at Pearl Harbor, the Navy announced today. There were no details as to the number of dead and injured.

The announcement follows:

"An explosion and fire which occurred while ammunition was being unloaded from one of a group of landing craft moored together in Pearl Harbor on May 21, 1944, resulted in destruction of several small vessels, some loss of life and a number of injuries.

"Further information will be announced later. A court of inquiry has been convened of which Rear Admiral John F. Shafroth, USN, is president."

New York State Survey Gives Dewey Edge Over Roosevelt

By George Gallup

Director American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., May 25.—A political popularity race in New York State, matching Thomas E. Dewey against Franklin D. Roosevelt as candidates for President, shows Governor Dewey holding a slight advantage at this time in terms of civilian votes.

When voters throughout the Empire State were asked by the Institute how they would vote if a presidential election were held today with their Governor heading the Republican ticket and Roosevelt, also a New Yorker and former Governor, heading the Democratic ticket, the lineup follows:

NEW YORK STATE
DEWEY	52%
ROOSEVELT	48

President Roosevelt carried New York in the 1940 presidential election by a comparatively small margin—52 per cent of the major party vote. Four years before that, in 1936, he won the State with 60 per cent.

New York is of course generally considered the key State in any presidential election because it has the largest number of electoral votes—47. Since 1876 only one candidate has ever succeeded in winning the Presidency without carrying New York. He was Woodrow Wilson.

Wilson lost the State to Charles E. Hughes in 1916, but was elected, although by a small margin, in the electoral college.

It should be emphasized that to-

Witness Says Schwinn Was Nazi 'Big Shot'

By James E. Chinn

Herman Max Schwinn, one of the 29 defendants in the mass sedition trial, yesterday was placed among Nazi "big shots" from Germany and the torch bearers of Hitlerism in the United States at a convention in Chicago in July, 1933, a month after orders were flashed from Berlin for the opening of an intensive large scale Nazi propaganda drive in this country.

Identification of Schwinn as one of the participants in the great Chicago conclave of swastika-waving Hitlerites was made by Peter Gissibl, the Government's first witness, who at one time was high in the inner councils of the Nazi party in America and eventually was rewarded with a coveted post as leader of the Chicago unit of the German-American Bund.

Gissibl revealed—but this disclosure was subsequently erased from the record—that the Chicago rally was held to carry out fresh

Labor Blocks Work-or-Fight Legislation

The Senate's Bailey-Brewster "work or fight" bill yesterday ran into a solid phalanx of labor opposition, virtully slamming shut the door on the legislation in its present form.

Following the earlier loud "no" from the AFL, the Senate Military Committee yesterday heard statements from CIO President Philip Murray and CIO Counsel Lee Pressman condemning the Administration's handling of the manpower problem, but demanding "voluntary" rather than "coercive" solutions.

long pending in a lukewarm committee, the solid labor legislation appeared to be the last straw, unless formal Presidential backing or modifications now under consideration save a vestige of the measure.

Organized labor at the same time opposed the Austin-Wadsworth National service bill, but reserved hard punches for the "work battalion" idea, even suggesting they

Airmen Sink Giant U-Boat With Rockets

By the Associated Press

Naval fliers have sunk a giant German U-boat somewhere in the Atlantic with the help of a new weapon—a rocket fired from a torpedo bomber.

The story of the battle "early this year" between the new naval weapon and the highly developed submarine was told yesterday in a naval communique.

"Attacking with rocket projectiles developed by the U. S. Navy, and backing up this new-style onslaught with older weapons, the American aircraft apparently destroyed the enemy without damage to themselves in a matter of minutes," it said.

Lieut. (j.g.) Leonard L. McFord, 26, of Baltimore, piloted the bomber which first launched rockets at the U-boat. "I think I got one and probably two hits," he said.

Close behind came another Avenger piloted by Lieut. (j.g.) Willis D. Seeley, 24, Huntington, Ind., to launch a salvo of projectiles, scoring at least two definite hits.

Both planes joined in a depth-bombing attack, flying through antiaircraft fire from the U-boat's deck guns which McFord said were so numerous they "looked like a picket fence."

The depth bombs apparently completed the job.

Carrier Planes Blast Wake And Marcus

Pearl Harbor, May 25 (AP).—Carrier-based aircraft of a Pacific Fleet task force blasted Marcus and Wake Islands, Japanese reconnaissance outposts in the west central Pacific, in an attack extending from last Friday to Tuesday, it was announced today.

Only four planes were lost in the twin slashes which developed a surprising weakness in the aerial defense of Marcus and an utter lack of interception over Wake.

Marcus Island, less than 1200 miles southeast of Tokyo, was battered May 19 and 20 with 148 tons of explosives in 373 sorties. Although that airbase had not been attacked since last August 31, when a similar carrier force worked it over for eight hours, only two Japanese planes were seen.

One, a medium bomber, was shot down near the target and the other strafed on the ground. Airdrome installations were hard hit, supply dumps destroyed, gun positions and buildings damaged, several small craft were sunk or damaged, and a small cargo vessel set afire north of the island.

It was in the Marcus attack that th ecarrire force lost four planes and three men, indicating that one pilot had been rescued.

Radio Tokyo, announcing the Marcusc raid last Monday, said 32

Crumple Foe In Cisterna, Crack Back Of Defenses

Close on Fleeing Germans Along 60-Mile Flank; 10,000 Captured

Naples, May 25 (AP).—Americans of the Anzio beachhead forces joined with Americans of the main Fifth Army front in the Pontine Marshes below Rome today after 14 days of a whirlwind offensive that cracked the back of the German defenses in Italy.

Tank-supported United States infantrymen crumpled German positions at the heart of Cisterna, enemy stronghold on the Appian Way, and were battling to wipe out the last sniper nests there athwart the road to Rome. Lieut. Eugene Bacon of Danville, Ill., forecast that all the Germans left in the city would be dead or captured within a few hours.

Nazi Prisoners Total 10,000

The bag of Nazi prisoners on both Allied fronts since the offensive began mounted to more than 10,000.

The United Fifth Army forces closed in along a 60-mile flank of the hard-pressed German armies, which had relinquished the entire west coastal area of Italy southw d from the Molletta River, only a score of miles below Rome.

Allied planes were pounding the retreating Germans ceaselessly, taking a terrific toll of men and material.

The battle of the beachhead, which had raged intermittently for four months, and the battle of the Hitler Line, which required only a few days, were finished, and the final, decisive battle for Rome and the extermination of the Germans in Italy appeared to be beginning.

Official reports indicated that the enemy was massing in several places for new counterattacks to break the force of Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark's thrust toward the Italian capital.

Foe at Rome Defense Line

As the Nazis reeled back upon their "last ditch" defense line before Rome, they were relentlessly hammered by Allied infantry and armor and harassed by clouds of Allied warplanes.

From north of Rome long columns of enemy reinforcements were rushed toward the unequal battle, a last-minute expedient of Field Marshal Albert Kesselring as he sought to avert a rout. Allied fighter planes and bombers were sweeping low and taking a terrible toll of these reserves. In two days more than 1000 German vehicles had been destroyed or damaged from the air.

(A Swedish correspondent quoted a German military spokesman in Berlin as declaring that "Rome will be defended." The German high command daily communique said Kesselring was withdrawing to a new line "northeast of the Appian way.")

The four-month epic of the Anzio beachhead ended officially at 7:31 a. m. Thursday, when Capt.

Dutch New Guinea Airfield Won by Battling Yanks

Allied Headquarters, New Guinea, (Friday) May 26 (AP).—United States Sixth Army units have battled their way through stiff Japanese resistance to reach the Maffin Bay airfield on Dutch New Guinea, 120 miles northwest of Hollandia, it was announced today by headquarters.

Today's report covered an advance scored Wednesday west of the Tor River with the support of Kittyhawk planes, tanks and artillery.

The destruction of 11 parked enemy planes at Noemfoor Island, north of Geelvink Bay, also was announced.

Latest available figures compiled on Japanese casualties at Hollandia and Aitape, invaded April 22 prior to the May 17 landing near Maffin Bay, totaled 3222.

'Abortive,' Taylor Admits

Very 'Courteous' Ward Officers Balked U. S. Effort to Run Firm

By Ben W. Gilbert

Wayne C. Taylor, Undersecretary of Commerce, yesterday admitted under questioning by a House committee that the Government never actually operated the Chicago properties of Montgomery Ward & Co. because of the resistance offered by company officials.

Taylor admitted that the whole affair was "abortive" even though the Department of Commerce went through the motions of maintaining control from April 26 to May 9 in compliance with a presidential executive order.

A former Chicago investment banker, who said he has known Sewell Avery, chairman of the board of the mail order firm for 20 years, Taylor said company officials were "extremely courteous" to him, but offered "no cooperation" with his efforts to run the firm.

At the conclusion of testimony by Taylor and John D. Goodloe, who assisted Taylor in "taking over" the properties, Chairman Robert Ramspeck (D., Ga.), stated he believed "every citizen ought to obey the orders of the Government, and if they think they are wrong, then test them in court."

"There is room for legal argument in this case," Ramspeck said, "but I don't approve of Avery's conduct in resisting the order of the Government."

Among the events at Chicago which Taylor and Goodloe cited as indicating the extent of the company's resistance were the following:

The company discharged employes during the period of the Government operation without approval. The CIO Mail Order Union has claimed that at least 22 union members were fired during the period and have never been reinstated.

Government posters announcing the seizure were defaced with swastika markings. Other Government posters were torn down.

Taylor and Goodloe never received access to Ward's books, even though they had accountants standing by prepared to set up separate accounts for the period of operation.

Ward executives who were ordered by the Federal District Court to refrain from interfering with Government operation stayed

Navy Is Blamed

$5,000,000 Housing Project Becomes a 'Ghost Town'

By Mary Spargo

The finest Government housing project in the United States became a "ghost town" before it was completed, chagrined Federal Public Housing Authority officials disclosed yesterday, but the blame for wasting an investment of 5 million dollars rests with the Navy Department, they insisted.

FPHA told The Washington Post that they have ordered 900 to 1200 family dwelling units in Lacey Park, Johnsville, Pa., padlocked, and the apartments kept merely in a stand-by condition.

Lacey Park, built to accommodate the workers of the Johnsville plant of the Brewster Aeronautical Corp., is comparable to Fairlington and McLean Gardens, FPHA said, but considered prettier than either, and the very best in the United Sates.

Over strenuous objections of the National Housing Agency, over-all housing authority, the Navy Department insisted the project be built, FPHA said.

The project now has some 160 families living in it, and is unlikely to receive any more, housing experts insist, because the Navy has canceled its contract with the Brewster corporation.

Even as the project reached completion in March of this year, the Navy Department was considering taking over the Johnsville plant for a reconversion center, attached to the Philadelphia Naval Air Station.

FPHA disclosed that when the Navy proposed the building of the permanent brick village for Johnsville workers, housing officials said only temporary war housing was

Fresh Troops Kept On Front in Italy

War Sidelights

Yank Morals In Britain Defended

London, May 25 (AP).—Questions in Commons reflecting on the moral conduct of American troops in Britain were branded "misconceived" and "mischievous" today by Home Secretary Herbert Morrison, who declared that the conduct of the soldiers "broadly speaking . . . is exceedingly good."

The House cheered several times as he denied suggestions that the U. S. military police were failing to cope with the situation and that Negro troops were being disciplined while white soldiers did whatever they like.

William D. Kendall, Independent, had declared "it is unfit for a woman to walk unescorted through a town at night time due to ineffectiveness of the American military authorities to deal with the improper behavior of American forces, and the complete failure to prevent unconcealed immorality and give proper protection to women."

The home secretary said, "In particular the innuendo that United States authorities are failing to assist to the utmost in disciplining their troops and checking misbehavior is quite unjustified.

"They have at all times cooperated to the fullest possible extent with our police. They take prompt and severe disciplinary action in any case where a breach of law is established, and have shown the great willingness to act on any suggestions made to them by British authorities.

Something Wrong in Cairo

London, May 25 (AP).—The Earl of Huntington told the House of Lords today that Greek affairs are still critical and complainted that "there is something wrong in Cairo."

"If there were not, 23 officially-credited war correspondents would not have written their letter of protest complaining that their copy had to reflect official policy and that they were in danger of being used as mouthpieces for official views and propaganda," he said.

New Policy Replaces Casualties Quickly, Stimson Explains

By the Associated Press

The sustained power which has kept American troops rolling in the Italian offensive was attributed by Secretary of War Stimson yesterday to the new Army policy of immediate combat replacements.

Under the new system, fresh troops are kept in readiness immediately behind the fighting line, and casualties in front-line units are replaced at once.

The innovation, which officials said has had a marked effect on the morale of the fighting men, was adopted only recently after the unit strength of the Army was completed.

Stimson, at a news conference, called attention to the plan's success in the Italian drive as "a demonstration of the importance of the efforts to obtain for our Army young and vigorous replacements which the War Department has emphasized so strongly during recent months."

Discussing the junction of American patrols fro mthe Anzio beachhead with south front troops, Stimson said:

"We can now begin to see the extent and scope of our operations in Italy and the first fruits of our progress."

The American elements, he noted, have advanced more than 60 miles in 13 days.

As a result of the replacement system, he said, "they are able to push forward with a continuing freshness and vigor which they might not otherwise have had."

The American divisions comprising the Second Corps of the Allied Fifth Army fought like veterans, Stimson said, although it was their first combat experience. He declined to identify the divisions.

Home front emphasis on younger troops has included halting inductions of men over 26, a drastic reduction in the number of young soldiers assigned as college students in the army specialized training program, and a campaign to obtain the voluntary transfer of qualified young enlisted men from other branches to the infantry.

instructions and decrees from German headquarters for a reorganization of the Nazi party in this country into a revolutionary movement, its ultimate objective being the overthrow of American democracy.

Western Leader of Bund

Schwin nhas been described by the Government as the "Gau West" or Western leader of the Bund, the organization the Nazis are accused of using to spread their political philosophies and ideologies throughout the United States. Until Hitler became Fuehrer in 1933 the Bund had no official recognition from the German government, according to official records, but as soon as the Nazis came into power it had direct relationship with the German Embassy and cosulates in this country.

Before Gissibl connected Schwinn with the important Chicago convention of the Nazis, Chief Justice Edward C. Eicher, over the vigorous protest of defense attorneys, admitted into evidence with a reservation a letter removed from the files of a House committee which 10 years ago investigated Nazi propaganda that already had started to seep through the Nation via underground channels. Justice Eicher ruled that while the document was admissible, it might later be stricken if the prosecution failed to connect it with the defendants.

Written in German by Heinz Spanknoegel, Nazi propaganda director in Wuerczburg, the letter was addressed to Hans Strauss, whom Gissibl identified as a "confidential agent" of the Nazi Party in the United States.

It directed dissolution of the Friends of the Hitler Movement in this country, and the organization of its successor the Friends of New Germany, which three years later was to become the German-American Bund.

Gissiby testified that Spanknoegel took an active part in the Chicago convention, coming to this country soon after writing the letter to Strauss.

Another Letter Discussed

As court adjourned for a long recess that will suspend the trial until Wednesday, Joseph W. Burns, assistant Federal prosecutor, was endavoring to establish the authenticity of another letter Spanknogel is alleged to have written in 1933 to Walter Kappe, whom Gissibl named as a member of the Friends of New Germany and publisher of a German language newspaper.

Adjournment came amid the echo of a thunderous charge by Attorney William Powers that the signature on the letter was a "forgery." He said he had an "experience" of his own with signatures and was confident the same hand that signed Spanknogel's name to the new letter did not sign the one that had been admitted into evidence.

ITALY

Ben Souza of Honolulu of the beachhead forces halted his patrol of 20 men a few miles below Littoria on the coastal road. Approaching him he saw Lieut. Francis X. Buckley of Philadelphia.

No Longer a Beachhead

"Where are you going?" demanded Souza.

"To make contact with the beachhead," replied Buckley.

"You've already made contact," grinned Souza.

Lieutenant General Clark, who personally directed the successful three-day-old attack from the beachhead, came along a few minutes later to declare, "This is an eventful day for the Fifth Army."

In 14 days, Allied forces plunging up the Tyrreanian coast had advanced more than 60 miles to effect the juncture. Terracina, some 9 miles from the meeting place, was captured Wednesday after hard fighting, forcing all Nazi troops in the coastal area to flee inland.

An official spokesman said that the beachhead, established in a surprise and virtually unopposed landing January 22, had played an important role in the present offensive, as its threat to the German rear had prevented the enemy from massing his full strength against the main Allied drive.

American troops bursting out of the beachhead to the north fiercely assaulted Cisterna, Nazi stronghold on the Appian Way, from three sides and by nightfall were wiping out the last German resistance inside the town. At least seven counterattacks had been repelled, in one of which 9 out of 26 Nazi tanks were destroyed.

Canadians Take Pontecorvo

Canadian forces, who Wednesday ripped through the heart of the Hitler Line in the Liri Valley, captured Pontecorvo and were reported mopping up German resistance along the Melfa River, 5 miles farther along the road to Rome.

(A German broadcast said that Aquino, another Liri Valley bastion of the Hitler Line, had been evacuated.)

The Poles were reported still fighting grim street battles in Piedimonte, in the foothills 5 miles west of Cassino, and a combined French-American force pressed on northwest from Pico against bitter resistance. Field dispatches said the Germans apparently were running short of tank strength in the Liri Valley.

Some of the hardest fighting of the campaign was raging in and around Cisterna, which the Nazis were trying to hold so their divisions which formerly held the eastern flank of the beachhead and those from the Terracina sector could be withdrawn into a new defense line before Rome.

This line was believed to run from Avezzano in about the center of Italy southwestward to Valmontone on the Via Casilina, thence through the Alban Hills above Velletri and on to the coast near the mouth of the Tiber River.

Slow Withdrawal Balked

The Nazi command obviously had hoped to make a slow, methodical withdrawal from the entire Hitler Line, taking time to pull back all heavy equipment. That intentino was thwarted when the Canadians, with spearheads of American-made Sherman tanks, crashed through north of Pontecorvo Thursday and caused what the Allied command called "considerable confusion in the enemy's rear."

(Allied troops have landed behind the German lines in the Anzio Beachhead, the broad cast German communique asserted. The Germans claimed the forces were "annihilated." The Paris radio said the Allies had tried to land north of the Nettuno beachhead in Italy but had been repelled. Both reports were without confimation.)

For the first time since the bloody fighting at Salerna, the Allied armies were getting a chance to use armor as a real striking force in comparatively open country.

A dust-caked crewman of an American tank summed it up more succinctly: "This is like Tnisia," he chuckled. "When it broke, it broke."

There was no official announcement that Littorio had been occupied by the Allies.

(The German high command said Nazi troops had "detached themselces from the Littoria area in a northeastern direction," adding that "these movements, despite sprong enemy pressure, are being carried out according to plan.")

In the air war Allied planes, meanwhile, flew a record number of 2950 sorties—of which 950 were carried out by heavy bombers—and destroyed 55 enemy aircraft.

streamed out, Berlin and the German transportation center of Aachen still smouldered from predawn attacks by 500 British heavy bombers, which also hit targets in occupied territory.

Berlin's third drubbing in 24 hours came from bomb and pamphlet-scattering Mosquitos, but the main attack was reserved for Aachen. The Air Ministry reported that it previously was so battered that its industries can make little contribution to the Nazi war effort, but the goal of the night raiders was the rail yards which funnel the great bulk of traffic from the Ruhr and western Germany into France and Belgium.

Another British target last night was the German-operated former Ford motor works at Antwerp, believed to be turning out about 400 trucks a month.

The Navy Department insisted, however, according to FPHA, that temporary housing was not "good enough" for the skilled airplane workmen of Brewster.

Because of the necessity of depending upon the armed services for priorities for any war worker developments, FPHA gave in and WPB granted the priorities for the construction of the elaborate brick development.

Officials of the UAW-CIO Local 365 of the Brewster workers charged yesterday the development was never needed at any time.

They insist it was the brain child of Frederick J. (Skippy) Feibel, jr., Navy-installed president who preceded Henry Kaiser. Reibel. according to hsi testimnoy before the House Naval Affairs Committee last year, was in constant difficulty with the union, although he developed the housing idea and similar projects, including a strip-tease show for Brewster workers. Union officials charged he was "paternalistic" in his approach.

ISLES

United States planes were shot down. It claimed an American submarine was hit as it attempted to rescue some of the airmen. The United States communique made no mention of such an incident.

After pounding Marcus for two days, the force, commanded by Rear Admiral Alfred E. Montgomery, sailed for Wake, 700 miles to the southeast. The attack on that former American island, seized by the Japanese early in the war, was made on Tuesday.

The carrier planes flew 354 sorties over Wake, dropping 150 tons of bombs on enemy positions. Twenty buildings were reported destroyed and others damaged. Several small vessels were sunk or damaged in the lagoon of that wishbone-shaped atoll that has been a frequent target of land-based planes in recent months.

Wake Neutralized

The communique did not mention antiaircraft fire, perhaps indicating the defenders may have been surprised. In the last land-based raid on Wake, on May 17, intense ground fire was encountered by four-engined Liberator bombers of the Seventh Army Air Force and one bomber was lost.

The extent to which Wake has been neutralized by aerial bombardment was shown by the fact that the carrier planes did not sight a single Japanese plane in the area.

Both Marcus and Wake have been attacked twice previously by United States carrier task forces. The assaults on Marcus represent the closest approach to Tokyo made by American Naval forces, with the exception of the carrier-based raid on Tokyo April 18, 1942.

MILLER

last February 21 as he waited in his black coupe for Miller's wife, Marguerite. She detailed a phone call Miller had received a few hours before the slaying, in which information concerning his wife's whereabouts was relayed to him.

"He was in the office when the telephone rang. I answered the phone and learned it was Frances, the maid who lives at the Miller house. I heard Mr. Miller ask the caller, "has she gone out?—how long ago?" and "did she take a package?"

"Then he grabbed his hat and left the office," the witness related. From that point began Miller's wild dash to the corner near the Woodward & Lothrop store where his wife had arranged to meet Lind, according to previous testimony. Mrs. Miller stated from the stand that she told her husband the morning of February 21 of her intentions to exchange a brassiere at the department store but had not been sure of her plans "because Dr. Lind had not called before Bob left the house."

Fingerprint Unidentified

The unidentified fingerprint on the flap of a white envelope containing the "mystery gun" of the death scene became more of a jinx than ever in the trial, when a second woman, Mrs. Townsend, refused to have her prints taken for the purpose of making a comparison. "Only on the advice of counsel" would she consider the proposal, she said, using the identical answer that was given the previous day by Mrs. Miller.

Changed Since July

Government attorneys claim that Miller tossed the second gun beside the dead man's body to support a plea of self-defense.

The secretary related that Miller was continually calling his home and checking on his wife's whereabouts, then calling St. Elizabeth's Hospital to see if Dr. Lind was at his desk.

"Have you an opinion on Miller's mental condition?" asked Attorney Welch.

"I know he was of unsound mind," the woman answered, a sob catching in her throat.

The change came over Miller since last July, she said, explaining that many times the attorney had remarked to her, "I wish I'd never picked up the telephone on July 12."

Seen With Revolver

Her statement concerning the July date went unexplained after Prosecuting Attorney Daniel B. Maher's objection was sustained by Judge Ben Moore.

Four or five days before the shooting, Mrs. Townsend saw Miller shift a revolver from one coat pocket to another as he made ready to leave the office, it was testified.

She also told of typing out a blank form for a revolver permit shortly before catching sight of the weapon but said the application was never mailed by Miller after she finished it.

Dr. Alexander Leonardo, Miller's personal physician, testified his patient suffered heart and stomach trouble last fall because of "some underlying psychoneurosis" caused by worry.

Went to Fihelly for Advice

Appearing as character witnesses for Miller were Justices T. Alan Goldsborough and James W. Morris of District Court and Judges Nathan Margold and George D. Neilson, Municipal Court.

Assistant U. S. Attorney John W. Fihelly testified that Miller came to him twice for advice on his martial difficulties. Fihelly advised Miller, he admitted, to talk the matter over with Dr. Lind and to tell the psychiarist he was going to see Dr. Winfred Overholser, superintendent of the hospital, where Lind was senior medical officer.

preferred that more comprehensive legislation to the Bailey-Brewster penalties.

Senator Warren R. Austin (R., Vt.), coauthor of the presently deadlocked National service bill, closely cross-questioned each witness. Later, Austin told newsmen that far from disparaging of total mibilization he was more convinced than ever that this step must ultimately be taken.

Neither Senator Owen Brewster (R., Vt.), or Senator Josiah W. Bailey (D., N. C.), both of whom have virtually put the "work or fight" case up to the President and are awaiting his reply, appeared at the hearing.

Lacking a direct indorsement by the President, some members of the committee said the bill stands a chance of favorable action only if penalty work features are eliminated and the bill is confined to a simple extension of the Tydings anti-turnover amendment to "freeze" draft-deferred labor in war industries as well as on the farm.

In its present form, the Bailey-Brewster measure would draft into special Army service units, at Army pay minus any soldiers' benefits, draft-deferred males between 18 and 45 who walk out on war jobs or refused to transfer to war industry on assignment.

away from the property and forced the Government managers to contact them through secretaries and assistants.

Union dues were not checked off as required by a War Labor Board order because the Government could not get access to payroll records.

In answer to questions, Taylor said, "I never received any information useful in conducting the business."

One official who started to explain the Ward organization to Taylor was "called to the telephone" by another Ward official, and later returned with the explanation that he had been instructed to give no further information to the Government, Taylor said.

When Taylor asked Ward President Clement P. Ryan to see him, Ryan sent back a reply that he was "too busy running Ward's," Taylor said.

Md. OPA Urges Heavy Penalties For Speeders

Baltimore, May 25 (AP).—Lea H. McCormick, Maryland OPA director, said today he was requesting all State war price and rationing boards to impose maximum penalties upon drivers found guilty of speeding, or otherwise violating regulations governing rationed goods.

McCormick said there has been "an upsurge of reckless driving and criminal misuse of gasoline and rubber."

He pointed out that penalties involve suspension of gasoline rations for periods ranging upwards from a few days to the duration.

72 Ask Revenge Warning to Axis

New York, May 25 (AP).—Seventy-two well known Americans have signed a petition urging the United Nations again to warn Axis and satellite nations of "swift retribution" for persecution of minorities, Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York, one of the signers, announced today.

47,605 Dead

Army, Navy Casualties Now 206,227

By the Associated Press

The latest report on American battle casualties places them at 206,227, of which 161,113 are Army personnel and 45,114 Navy. Dead in the two services total 41,605.

Army casualties through May 6 were: 28,059 killed, an increase of 762 from a previous report covering the period through April 28: 65,779 wounded, an increase 1458; 35,496 missing, an increase of 1781; 31,779 prisoners, an increase of 436.

Navy casualties: 19,546 dead, an increase of 325 from a May 11 report; 12,089 wounded, an increase of 19; 9026 missing, a decrease of 908; (probably resulting chiefly from transfer of names to dead or wounded categories); 4453 prisoners, unchanged.

Army casualties were highest in the North African theater, with a total of 76,201, of whom 14,057 are dead, 44,654 wounded, 8711 missing and 8779 taken prisoner.

The Southwest Pacific total was 9939, of whom 2536 were killed, 4625 wounded, 1756 missing and 1022 captured. In the Philippines 1084 were killed, 1700 wounded, 15,570 missing, 14,041 imprisoned—a total of 31,395. The European theater reported 23,864 casualties, with 4090 dead, 3191 wounded, 8226 missing and 8357 held by the enemy. The southwest Pacific had 2292 killed, 6917 wounded, 555 missing and seven captured, a total of 9771.

Central Pacific's total of 2951 included 834 killed, 1864 wounded, 243 missing, 10 captured. North American casualties were 2558, with 1304 dead, 1050 wounded, 201 missing and three captured. The Middle East had 469 dead, 284 wounded, 810 missing and 466 wounded, a total of 2029. In the Asiatic theater there were 1390 casualties, of whom 384 are dead, 305 wounded, 567 missing and 134 captured.

Abbott Votes Extra

Chicago, May 25 (AP).—Directors of Abbott Laboratories today declared a nextra dividend of 15 cents a share in addition to the quarterly dividend of 40 cents a share on common stock, both to be paid June 30 to stockholders of record June 9.

The number of Federal retirement claims now is declining because many persons reaching retirement age are remaining at work.

Ruling Upholds Veteran Rights To Former Jobs

Collective bargaining agreements changing conditions of employment cannot operate to deprive returning veterans of their right to their old obs, Ma. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, director of Selective Service, ruled yesterday in issuing a memorandum to draft boards to guide them in interpretnig the reemployment provisions of the draft law.

Hershey's memorandum also that seniority rights accumulate during the veteran's periodof active service in the armed forces in the same manner as they would have accumulated had he remained continuously at work in his civilian occupation.

The veteran is entitled to reinstatement in his former position or one of like seniority, status and pay, even though such reinstatement necessitates the discharge of a nonveteran with greater seniority, Hershey said. Application for reinstatement must be made within 40 days after discharge from service.

The clause o fthe memorandum applicable to labor agreements is as follows:

"If, upon a veteran's return from military service, he finds that his employer has entered into employment agreements with others setting up conditions of employmen different from those which exised at the time the veteran lef, the veteran cannot be deprived of his reemployment rights by reason of these agreements."

The memorandum distinguished between veteran who held "permanent" positions before the war—were entitled to reinstatement under the act—and those holding "temporary" appointments and not entitled to reinstatement.

"Generally speaking," the memorandum said, "one who is employed to fill the place made vacant by a person entering service occupies a temporary status and has no reemployment rights, even though he subsequently enters service."

The regulations specified that conscientious objectors are not entitled to reinstatement under the Selective Service Act.

Individual veterans normally would apply to draft board reemployment committeemen for guidance on their rights under the Selective Service Act. In specific, doubtful cases, a State draft director may be asked for advice and assistance. If it is found that a veteran entitled to reemployment has been refused, local draft boards are directed to send the veteran's file to national headquarters for reference to the Department of Justice.

Issue Is Revived For Juvenile Court

Separate Setup Pressed by P-TA In Alexandria

Alexandria Bureau of The Post, 110 North St. Asaph St. TEmple 6538.

Renewed interest in a movement for separation of the Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court from the Civil and Police Court was evident in Alexandria yesterday with the Alexandria Council of Parent-Teacher Associations and the city probation office making bids for further support of the proposal.

The separation which has been advocated for more than a year by Judge James Reece Duncan, who presides in both courts, was called for earlier this year by the City Council but was stalemated in the Virginia General Assembly.

Separation Widely Urged

Mrs. William E. Warne, president of the city-wide P.-T. A. Council, which has urged that separation of the courts, recommended in a survey of detention in Alexandria by Francis H. Hiller, field consultant of the National Probation Association, be pressed by the City Council, has requested active support from 500 leading Alexandrians in letters inviting them to join the probation association.

Miss Anne H. Monroe, city probation officer, said the present expansion of the Civil and Police Court offices to include two rooms recently vacated by the school board on the same floor in the City Hall will not be sufficient to provide adequate space for juvenile hearings or remove the children from contact with the Police Court.

Facilities Described

Recommending that the Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court be assigned offices and a hearing room in a separate building, preferably in a receiving home, she said that the only space reserved for children's cases is the small office she uses, and the adjoining stenographer's room is the only waiting room, providing only four seats.

She advocated a detention home, where the judge could hold meetings with the children at regular times, and adequate quarters for her office and that of her assistant, Mrs. J. E. Nelson.

St. Mary's Rehearsals

Rehearsals are now being held by the 32 pupils in the pre-school at St. Mary's Catholic Academy in Alexandria for a program to be presented at the close of the 1943-1944 session Wednesday morning, May 31, at 9:30.

The Sisters of the Holy Cross who conduct the academy at Mount Ida Manor, 2404 Russell rd., in the western section of Alexandria, are inviting parents of the children to attend.

It was announced yesterday that parents interested in enrolling their children in the 1944 summer session of the acadamy pre-school should make application immediately. The session will open on Monday morning, June 5, and continue until August 4.

The daily schedule of activities for children between the ages of 3 and 6 provides a summer program of daily supervision from 9 a. m. until noon.

Jewish Ritual Tonight

Members of the Fairlington-Parkfairfax Jewish Community Association and residents of Alexandria and Arlington will attend services for the Festival of Shabuot this evening at 8:15 at the Temple Beth El, 206 North Washington st., Alexandria. The rabbi, the Rev. Dr. Hugo B. Schiff, will officiate during the rites marking the acceptance of the Ten Commandments on Mount Sinai.

Following the services, a social hour in the vestry room of the temple will be held by the Fairlington- Parkfairfax Jewish Community Association. The social committee headed by Mrs. Eugene Rapaport and Mrs. Sidney S. Feinberg will serve refreshments and a short program of music and entertainment will be presented.

Mrs. William W. Kapell of 3310 Coryell lane, Alexandria, is secretary of the association and may be reached by telephone at Temple 2620.

60 Acres of Woods

Arlington Girl Scouts Open Camp

The Arlington Girl Scout Camp Committee has announced the opening of a new camp for Arlington Girl Scouts, in Fairfax County, 2½ miles from McLean.

The site has 60 acres of woods, three streams, an open play field and a recreation lodge-dining hall. The camp will be operated for seven weeks this summer and the program will be planned by the girls with the help of a trained and qualified staff.

The summer session will open June 27 with a one-week session for older girls. This will be followed by weeks for grade school Girl Scouts, junior Girl Scouts and older Brownie Scouts.

After the summer camp closes, the recreation lodge will be available for weekend and holiday time camping for all Girl Scout troops of Arlington.

Members of the camp committee include Mrs. W. O. Fraser, chairman; Mrs. Edward Condon, Mrs. Wallace Hooper, Mrs. C. R. Miklason, Mrs. C. B. Gerber, Mrs. J. L. Reinartz, and Mrs. Raymond Sawyer, Girl Scout commissioner.

Tri-County Baptist Group To Meet June 1

The annual meeting of the seneca Baptist Association will open at the Rockville Baptist Church Thursday evening, June 1, at 7:30 p. m.

The opening service will be in charge of C. E. Hoskin of Kensington, who is in charge of the training union work of the association. The work of the Sunday school will be presented by the Rev. L. D. Carmack of Brunswick. Sword drills and the election of officers will feature the service.

On Friday, June 2, the morning session will begin at 10 with reports from all the churches in the association. There are 12 churches in the association located in Washington, Frederick and Montgomery Counties.

The annual sermon will be preached by the Rev. W. C. Royal of Frederick, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Frederick.

The afternoon session at 2 will feature the work of the Women's Missionary Union. Reports of all the socities will be presented and officers will be elected.

Dr. Dewey Moore, a missionary returned from Italy will speak. Mrs. Samuel Barnes of Baltimore will also address the group.

The evening session will begin at 7:30 when the officers of the association, and committees will be elected. Dr. J. T. Watts, State secretary of Maryland, will speak.

Price of Cotton And Textiles May Be Linked

The Senate Banking Committee yesterday voted to amend the Price Control Act by tying the price of raw cotton to that of finished textiles.

Sponsored by Senator John H. Bankhead 2d, (D., Ala.) the amendment stipulates the maximum price for cotton textile items must be no less than the sum of the parity cost of the cotton or yarn, delivered at the mill, plus the cost of manufacturing the item—as indicated by the manufacturing costs of at least 90 per cent of the trade—and a "reasonable profit" on the item.

OPA spokesmen last night saw the amendment as devastating to efforts to bring low-price clothing back on the market and were particularly opposed to the provision that the cost mark-up provision would be based on experiences of 90 per cent of the trade.

The proposal is expected to be opposed vigorously by the agency, which is under fire now for what Price Administrator Chester Bowles has admitted was a lack of foresight in permitting the quality and pricing of clothing to "get out of hand."

Scarcity of low-price clothing now constitutes the major threat to a break in the cost-of-living line, just as food did a year ago when Congress and the Administration fought bitterly over food subsidies.

Majority Leader Alben Barkley said the OPA bill, designed to extend life of the agency for another 18 months, may be reported to the Senate today and should reach the floor by next Thursday.

Davis Declaration On Impartiality in Election Ridiculed

Elmer Davis' declaration that the Office of War Information would report the Presidential campaign impartially was ridiculed yesterday by Representative Brown (R.-Ohio) as having been made "with tongue in cheek."

Davis has said the OWI's policy would be "to create the best possible impressio nof both candidates, with absolute impartiality."

"Mr. Davis could not be any more impartial than Harry Hopkins, David Niles, Felix Frankfurter, Sidney Hillman or Earl Browder," said the Ohioan, a frequent critic of OWI. "He is completely allied with this group of fourth term drum-beaters."

Grand Jury to Get Gem-Theft Case In Alexandria

An Alexandria Negro, Edward Moore Jones, 37, was ordered held for action of the grand jury in Alexandria Corporation Court yesterday following a hearing on a larceny and assault charge in Alexandria Civil and Police Court.

He was accused of breaking into the home of Mrs. Mary Nicols at 316 North Washington st., the night on May 20, striking and attempting to strangle her, and making off with a pocketbook containing a diamond ring valued at $500 and $45 in cash.

Held under $500 bond as a material witness, his common law wife, Joella Thomas, 23, of Fairfax County, claimed he had given the ring to her as a gift. Police said it was found in her suitcase.

Another Negro, Robert Haley, 41, of Gum Springs, in Fairfax County, was called as a material witness upon Jones' testimony that he purchased the ring from Haley for $15. He has been released under $500 bond.

City Halts Sale Of U.S.-Owned Milk

Philadelphia, May 25 (AP).—Dr. Elkin H. Yunker, of the Department of Health, has ordered a halt to the proposed sale of 5000 cases of Government-owned evaporated milk, some of which has spoiled.

Dr. Yunker said yesterday the milk will remain in warehouses until he and inspectors of the Federal War Food Administration have inspected every can. He valued the milk at $21,000.

Corrigan Denies Naval Career Made Money for His Firm

By the Associated Press

Commander John D. Corrigan, suspended from duty while the Navy, a grand jury and a Senate committee investigates his former engineering firm's business with Navy contractors, declared yesterday his Navy service had cost the firm money.

The 43-year-old former president of Corrigan, Osburne & Wells, New York management consultation service, waived his right to remain silent when informed by the Senate's Truman Committee that a Federal grand jury in New York would look into his company's contracts with firms he has inspected for the Navy.

Then, taking the stand, he declared:

"My absence in the service has undoubtedly retarded development of business which might normally have been expected in such times as these."

Before he testified, the Navy temporarily suspended him from active duty and was investigating a statement by Senator Truman (D., Mo.) that a number of firms producing ordinance material had retained Corrigan's firm to study their production problems.

Production Management Chief

Corrigan, who has been chief of the production management unit in the Ordnance Bureau, told the Truman Committee he entered the Navy in April, 1942, and had tried to avoid any "possible criticism" arising from his half-ownership of the New York engineering service. He resented, he said, any "imputation" that either he or his firm "have not given their full measure of devotion to the war."

He testified after Marvin J. Wagner, accountant for the firm Corrigan jointly owns with Robert H. Wells, told the Senators of continuing Corrigan's $1000 a month salary after he resigned the presidency.

Wagner read into the record amounts totaling $319,371 billed by Corrigan, Osborne & Wells to nine corporations having Navy contracts and which Committee Counsel Hugh Fulton said were inspected at one time or another by Corrigan in the course of his duties as a "trouble shooter."

The firms were:

Danly Machine Specialties, Inc., Chicago, $84,200; J. S. Thorne & Co., Philadelphia, $18,306; Bell & Howell Co., Lincolnwood, Ill., $29,115; Farrand Optical Co., Woodlawn, N. Y., $15,705; American Cystoscope Makers, Inc., Brooklyn, N. Y., $30,690; Edgemoor Iron Works, Wilmington, Del., $12,150; Carl L. Norden, Inc., New York, $60,610; Carl L. Norden, Inc., Elmira, N. Y., $44,190, and Downington Mfg. Co., Downington, Pa., $24,405.

Developing Secret Weapon

Corrigan declared he has spent the major part of the last several months on a "new type" secret weapon which he conceived and is developing for the Navy.

Up to that time, he said, his main duty was to analyze the management of contracts slow in coming through with Navy orders. He said he saved the Navy $2,500,000 a month in material and loadings in one case in which he recommended a "simpler design" for a primer which "permitted backfires and injured a gun crew."

Commenting that there is a "crying need" for management specialists, he said his firm "could have had many more profitable jobs had I remained with it."

He cited a letter he wrote on August 22, 1943, in which he told the chief of the bureau of ordnance that his New York firm was employed by six firms after he had visited them, citing American Cystocope, Bell and Howell, and Farrand Optical among them.

Clearance of Superior

"The fact that several firms have employed my former company may be interpreted as aiding me financially while actually my position in the bureau has caused me to suffer financially when measured in terms of what I could earn as management engineer versus my earning as a naval officer, plus dividends received from stock interest," the letter said.

Under questioning by Senator Ferguson, Corrigan said his firm was allowed to take contracts if certain precautions were taken, and that he had on occasion told his company not to take certain contracts.

Ferguson led the witness into a discussion of how he talked with his superior naval officers about contracts his firm received.

"Then it's a fair thing to say," the Senator inquired, "that in all these cases where your firm was hired you had clearance of a superior officer?"

"Yes, sir," Corrigan replied.

Schools Extend Bomber Drive In Alexandria

The "buy-a-plane" war bond and stamp campaign in Alexandria's public schools which was scheduled to end today has been extended a week, it was announced yesterday by Miss Nena DeBerry, supervisor of elementary education, who has been in charge of sales.

Funds raised toward the $75,000 goal for the purchase of a B-25 Mitchell medium bomber had reached $6,488.95 for the spring semester at the end of last week, according to figures made public by Mrs. Florence Perkinson, secretary to Miss DeBerry, who has been compiling sales records for the schools.

The ten elementary schools and two high schools in the city are redoubling their efforts to raise the additional $13,511.05 by the June 2 deadline. In the latest report of sales for the week, Mount Vernon School took the lead with $2586.65 in additional war funds, and Jefferson School was second with $418.60.

Other listings for the week were as follows: George Washington High School, $394.55; Charles Dodson Barrett School, $174; Lee School, $120; Maury School, $107.90; George Mason School, $89.70; Douglas A. MacArthur School, $63.60; Washington School, $45.80.

Lyles-Crouch Elementary School for Negroes, $76.20; Parker-Gray High School for Negroes, $25.65; Seminary Elementary School for Negroes, $21.65.

2d Tick Fever Case Reported In Montgomery

The 5-year-old daughter of a Bethesda Coast Guard officer is being treated for spotted fever in Marine Hospital, Baltimore, where doctors report her formerly serious condition to be "much better," it was learned yesterday.

The victim is Elizabeth Bloom, daughter of Capt. Walfred G. Bloom, daughter of Capt. Walfred G. Bloom and Dr. Helena Bloom, 5500 Hampden lane, Bethesda. He is stationed with the operations division of Coast Guard headquarters here.

Exposed to measles, the child first was thought to be suffering from that disease when she broke out with a rash and her temperature began varying from 104 to 107 degrees at night, her mother said. A week later diagnosis found her stricken with spotted fever and she was hospitalized on May 16.

This is the second spotted fever case reported by the health department in Montgomery County this season. The first case of the disease, which is contracted from ticks, was that of a young farmer in Gaithersburg, and was reported several weeks ago.

Dr. V. L. Ellicott, Montgomery County health officer, warned all residents to watch for ticks, urging their removal by tweezers or pinchers.

Electric Ranges To Be Produced

Production of 88,000 domestic electric ranges, of which 68,000 will be available to civilians are expected to be manufactured in 1944, the War Production Board said yesterday.

The total represents about 16 per cent as many as were produced in the year ending June 30, 1941, and will not meet the demand which has arisen since electric range production stopped in 1942. However, officials estimate that it wil ltake care of most essential requirements. The ranges will not be rationed, but will be distributed through normal retail channels.

County Agent Denies Plans To Hire Nazis

Use of Nazi war prisoners to relieve the labor shortage on Montgomery County farms is "entirely in the air," O. W. Anderson, county agriculture agent, declared yesterday in his denial that plans are under way to engage such help.

Anderson said that there are no German war prisoners at Fort Meade and until they arrive no arrangements can be made. He said he was told that Italian war prisoners now at Fort Meade will be released to replace American soldiers here in certain duties and German prisoners will probably be brought to Meade.

If they are, Anderson stated, some plans may be worked out for farmers to hire Nazi prisoners providing they can transport the men back and forth to Fort Meade not more than 20 miles away from the camp and within 12 hours from the time they leave. Farmers will be required to pay the prisoners, 80 cents of their wages to be credited to purchases they make at the camp.

Honor for Draft Board

In recognition for their "outstanding community service," members of Montgomery County Selective Service Board No. 2, at Silver Spring, will be presented medals by the Cissel-Saxon American Legion Post at its annual memorial services Sunday at 2 p. m., in front of the Silver Spring Armory.

Stephen James, chairman of the board; William H. Reynolds and Henry E. Allanson, who have served on the board continuously since October 16, 1940, will be awarded the legion medals by John F. Collier, commander of the post. Judge Einar Christensen, a member of the post, will pay tribute to the men before the presentation, which will follow services at the post's memorial tablet and stone.

Twenty-six white crosses flanked with clusters of poppies will be placed on the plot before the tablet in memory of deceased members of the post who were veterans of the last war.

Mrs. A. K. Davis Elected

Mrs. Alton K. Davis, Hillandale, Md., who has devoted much time in the last two years to volunteer war work throughout the county, has been elected president of the Central Volunteer Bureau of the Social Welfare Council of Montgomery County.

Other new officers elected are Mrs. Dexter Bullard, Rockville, vice president; Mrs. Harry Eaton, Rockville, treasurer, and Mrs. James Parker Nolan, Chevy Chase, treasurer.

Members elected to the executive board are Alfred D. Noyes, Kensington; Mrs. Minier Hostetler, Glen Echo; Rear Admiral Adolphus Staton, USN (retired), Chevy Chase; Mrs. William Carter Bowles, Bethesda; Mrs. Lynn Howell, Chevy Chase; Town Councilman Herman C. Heffner, Takoma Park, and Mrs. Stanley Smith, Bethesda.

Picnic for Servicemen

Service men and women and junior hostesses will meet Sunday at 11 a. m. at the Bethesda USO club which is sponsoring a picnic at the Palisades Recreation Grounds. Tennis, badminton, soft ball and other sports will be available to those athletically inclined.

The weekly Sunday night supper at 5:30 in the clubrooms will be given by the Newcomb Club with Mrs. Kester Hastings in charge. A musical program under the direction of Mrs. Willard Day and Mrs. George Myers will be presented.

Sentaor Thomas (D., Okla.) became acting president pro tempore of the Senate yesterday in the absence of Vice President Wallace, on a trip to Siberia and China.

Harry Switzer Assumes Post As Alexandria Scout Director

Harry Switzer of Washington this week assumed his duties as executive director of Alexandria Boy Scouts after meeting more than 150 members of that city's 13 troops at the annual camporee held last weekend at the Scout grounds on Summers ave., west of Braddock rd.

Delegate W. Selden Washington of the Virginia General Assembly, who is chairman of the Alexandria district in the National Capital Area of Scouts, said that Switzer is the first full time, paid director of scouting Alexandria has had in 15 years.

With his appointment, the council is planning to expand the Boy Scout movement in Alexandria to provide greater opportunities for wholesome leisure time activities for boys. Increased enrollment will make it possible to form additional troops, Switzer said.

Rutcher Skagerberg, chairman of the camping and activities program for the Alexandria Scouts, was in charge of the camporee, assisted by 18 boys ranging in ages from 15 to 17.

N. E. Ward Named Rockville Postmaster

Norman E. Ward, who was yesterday appointed by President Roosevelt postmaster at Rockville, is 45 years old and a life-long resident of Rockville and vicinity. He entered the Rockville postoffice October 1, 1921, and continued there until February, 1935, when he became connected with the postoffice at Silver Spring as a carrier. He returned to the Rockville office in April, 1943, and on April 15 of last year was appointed assistant postmaster at Rockville.

On December 31 last, he was designated acting postmaster at Rockville. He was indorsed for the appointment as regular postmaster by the Democratic State Central Committee for Montgomery County. Ward is a pastmaster of Montgomery Lodge of Masons, No. 195, of Rockville and until a few months ago was secretary of that organization for a number of years. He is married but has no children.

'Chip Off Old Block' Affords a Gay Time On Screen at Keith's

IN THE YOUTHFUL Mr. Donald O'Connor, Universal has an amiable and ingratiating young player of more than average comic resourcefulness.

That is the impression that was conveyed the first time he popped onto the screen as an individual star, and the one that was multiplied several times at yesterday's opening of "Chip Off the Old Block," at RKO-Keith's Theater.

Had not one or two of them escaped this scrutiny, the temptation would be strong to say that "Chip Off the Old Block," is the most agreeably entertaining stellar vehicle Master O'Connor has had to date. Could be that it is no such thing, but if there was a better one, it must have been an unusually effective implement with which to destroy an amusing and tuneful hour or two.

Not that "Chip Off the Old Block" is any great shakes as a picture. It makes no pretensions to magnitude or magnificence. All it does is reflect the freshness and spontaneity of some pleasant youngsters, pursuing their amorous, adolescent adventures under the close and critical eyes of a group of adult mimes of uniform capability and a fair share of distinction on both stage and screen—the two mediums with which the juvenile O'Connor also has been familiar all his life.

Suspension Starts It

The story concerns the gay and gloomy experiences of one Donald Corrigan, tossed out of Sperling Naval Prep School because he has inherited a shade too much of the incorrigible spirit of his dad and grandpappy, now among the most illustrious of the Sperling alumni.

On the train away from there, Donald finds the eye exercises prescribed for faulty vision exceedingly helpful in making the acquaintance of Gloria Marlow, the third generation of a family of celebrated stage stars. His grandfather, it seems, was not unknown to Gloria Marlow I, nor his father to the second in the line, mother of the immediate object of his interest. The coincidence proves anything but an aid to romance.

Further complications are piled up by the presence of a harried theatrical producer and a bewildered playwright; a former stage maid and butler, serving in the same capacities in the Marlow home, and Donald's unique misconception of his father's paternal and patriotic motives.

On this foundation of a flippant story by Robert Arthur, scenarists Eugene Conrad and Lee Townsend have reared a "plot" that doesn't amount to a row of pins, beyond its facility in providing for a succession of enlivening songs and dances and a steady flow of incidental and unobtrusive comedy that is constantly rollicking without ever becoming so riotous as to roll an audience up and down the aisles.

A Personable Youngster

Donald O'Connor, as Donald Corrigan or anyone else, has the happy faculty of playing a flip kid in a manner that is neither irritating nor obnoxious. Not liking the youngster would be quite a strain. Furthermore, as we were saying, he knows all the tricks of his trade, sings well enough and dances considerably better than that—especially when teamed, as he is again, with Peggy O'Brien, a singing and dancing comedienne, whose abilities also are well beyond those of the casual hoyden of her age.

Even had the vivacious Miss O'Brien been omitted from the cast, the youthful feminine honors would have been engagingly upheld by Ann Blyth, a newcomer, in the role of Gloria III. Miss Blyth has a nicely ingenuous way with her—particularly when she is singing in a clear and pure soprano of no great power but of warm and irresistible charm, nevertheless.

By no means to be overlooked among the juvenile principals is Joel Kupperman, the 7-year-old mathematical wizard of the Quiz Kids. The Einsteinian gifts of the prodigious Kupperman are put to enormously comic uses in several sequences.

Able Adult Cast

The maturer characters in the piece are judiciously intrusted to Helen Broderick and Helen Vinson as the earlier of the Glorias; Minna Gombel and Arthur Treacher, the footlight servitors; Ernest Truex and J. Edward Bromberg producer and author; Patric Knowles, Samuel S. Hinds and Irving Bacon, all under the sagacious direction of Charles Lamont.

"Reward Unlimited," a Victory Reel devoted to cadet nursing, with such as Dorothy McGuire, Aline MacMahon, Spring Byington and Fay Holden in the leading roles; "Aircraft Carrier," a new release in the "This Is America" series; the Pathe News, and Walt Disney's Donald Duck cartoon comedy, "Contrary Condor," are the screen auxiliaries of a diversified bill that ought to make Keith's a popular port of call on the show-shopping tour this week.

Moody Weather Will Continue In Capital Today

A continuation of moody weather is in store for Washington today.

According to the forcast, it will be "considerably cloudy" with thundershowers at night. It will be warmer than it was yesterday.

A high of 67 at 4 p. m. yesterday 7 degrees below the 74 of last year's May 25. Yesterday's low of 62 at 7:45 a. m. identical with the low of last year.

The high of yesterday's relative humidity read 97 at 8:30 a. m. a 9-point rise over the 88 high of a year ago. The low was 93 at 2:30 p. m., 20 points above last year's 73.

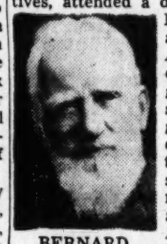
New York, May 25.—Representative Joe Martin, the Republican leader in the House of Representatives, attended a dinner given by Elsa Maxwell, at the Waldorf-Astoria. "I didn't want to go, at first," said the Congressman, "because an election's coming up soon and it might be used against me. After all, an Elsa Maxwell dinner at the Waldorf is something for which my constituents would demand an explanation." . . . "And why did you change your mind?" Representative Martin was asked . . . "Well, someone told me that there's a big Victory Garden on the Waldorf's roof," he replied, "and so I could tell my constituents that I really was moving in agricultural circles."



BERNARD SHAW

Frederic Lonsdale, the British playwright, was walking in Central Park with Peter Beatty, nephew of Marshall Field. Mr. Beatty, who is about to have a delicate eye operation, suddenly began to run. Lonsdale ran after him, couldn't overtake him . . . Beatty finally stopped running, and walked. Lonsdale, gasping, reached his side, and asked: "Why did you run? What's the matter." . . . "Nothing," said Beatty. "I was so bloody bored, that's all."

In Central Park last week, the Jacobowsky Peerless Invincibles," the baseball team organized by the cast of "Jacobowsky and the Colonel," played a game against its Theater Guild rivals, the "Othello Otherwisers." The Othello Otherwisers won the close, nine-inning game, 28-25. The Jacobowsky Peerless Invincibles are protesting the result, charging foul . . . In the ninth inning, with the bases full, the Jacobowsky Peerless Invincibles' first baseman, Lou Calhern, leaped and caught a line drive. The Othello players and rooters applauded the catch, and, naturally, Calhern bowed. Then came the foul tactics which has brought about the protest. For the Othello Otherwisers, knowing that no actor ever failed to respond to applause, continued to applaud, and Calhern continued to bow—until the three runners scored and won the game.

A few days ago Professor Murphy wrote to Captain Oates: "Did you notice the order for 45 copies of our book from the Naval Supply Depot in Oakland Calif.? I am still wondering what they want with it. G. B. Shaw has written to his producers explaining why he can't have his plays produced now: Shaw said that under British taxation if he earns $100,000 he can keep one dollar out of every $5. But if he should earn $100,000 plus one cent, he may keep only 12 cents out of $5 . . . The man whose work made the "I Am an American Day" so successful here—with an attendance of over 1,400,000—is Morris Novik, director of WYNC. . . . That Brooklyn Tree

Hollywood, Calif., May 25.—Visited "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn" set. It even smells like Brooklyn—and don't think that's a slam. Plenty of horses on the streets, but no white wings. I think Twentieth Century has a find in Director Elia Kazan. He came to fame because he was lazy. He went from high school to Williams college. On graduation he got a job, but loathed time clocks. He wasn't able to stop them, so looked around for a place where they didn't exist. Came across Yale drama course, took it. Joined group theater thinking it would be pretty easy to become a director. But Clifford Odets beat him to it. He stayed on, then a part came along in "Waiting for Lefty." He decided to try acting, went into it, made a hit, and acted for six years. Came here to play in "City for Conquest" with James Cagney. He needed $12,000 to buy a farm near Danbury, Conn. While here he sold Warners his story "Blues in the Night." He got his $12,000, went back, bought the farm. Back on Broadway, he directed "Cafe Crown." Thornton Wilder saw it and asked him to direct "Skin of Your Teeth" with Tallulah Bankhead. Since then he's directed "Harriet" for Helen Hayes and "One Touch of Venus" with Mary Martin. Not bad for a fellow who's lazy. He'll do one a year and only take a story he likes. He read "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn," wanted to do it. When it's finished, Uncle Sam may grab him. He's 34.

TALLULAH BANKHEAD

A Few Short Shorts

The studios gave in to demands of Mr. Petrillo. But I'll bet they'll end up being sorry. One man who fought all the way was Harry Cohn . . . When Maria Jeritza goes to Corona Hospital to sing for the boys who cannot be moved, she'll be accompanied for the first time by a guitar . . . There'll be quite a turnout from here in Chicago for the Republican Convention. Cecil De Mille and David Selznick are delegates. Leo Carrillo will be there with Governor Warren. Ida Koverman and I are bunking together. My job during the convention will be political instead of pictures . . . Rumor hath it that as soon as Oona O'Neill Chaplin's baby is born in August, she'll divorce Charlie . . . Leo Carrillo received from Mrs. Irvin Cobb silver spurs and a large white sombrero which Irvin requested be given him . . . Margaret O'Brien's aunt, Marissa, a dancer, who's been constantly with little Margaret as teacher, has landed a dramatic role in "Music for Millions"—and a long-term contract at Metro.

Nice Pointing

Since Ruth Chatterton is in town visiting her mother who's not well, our producers are trying to get her to sign on the dotted line. She looks mighty fine. She was the first young star willing to play an old woman as she did in "Madame X." That was 14 years ago. After she'd done it, other stars at Metro asked for roles like that. But before Ruth did it they were unwilling to play mothers . . . Halsman, portrait photographer, is here shooting Claudette Colbert, Jennifer Jones and Shirley Temple for "Since You Went Away." When that's done, he'll point his camera at Ingrid Bergman. That's nice pointing . . . Well, well . Hal Wallis is so popular in Wall Street a syndicate wanted to buy controlling interest in RKO for him. I thought Bill Goetz had the inside on that.

The Fans Remember

Gloria Swanson plans more summer stock. She hasn't been on the screen for ages, yet her name has more drawing power than many top Broadway stars. The fans don't forget, but producers do. . . . Fannie Brice bumped into Hope Harding Davis in the Metro commissary, told her many things about her famous mother, Bessie McCoy. Bessie gave Fannie a layette for her young daughter which was so lovely it's now doing service for her granddaughter. . . . Eric Blore is buttling in overalls in "San Diego, I Love You." Edward Everett Horton's also in that. Remember how good they were in the old Astaire and Rogers films? . . . Red appling, huh? Joy Hodges, knowing how Secretary Morgenthau loves apples, collects recipes for apple dishes and mails them to him, with her pic inclosed . . . Diana Barrymore didn't like a kidding script handed her for a broadcast of "Romeo and Juliet." She said, "Don't you know that play was sacred to my father?" . . . The night "Show Business" opened, when 50 stars and starlets accompanied 50 convalescent boys from the Birmingham hospital, four starlets were half an hour late. The rest of the gals had their partners and were waiting all ready to go in station wagons when these four gals blew in. One of them voiced the sentiments of the rest when she said: "What did I tell you? I knew nobody else would show up." At that, 46 heads popped out of windows and gave them the merry ha-ha.

Agency Urged For Disposal Of War Goods

Legislaion creating an agency to handle sale, storage and disposal of surplus war material is deemed essential by the War Department Maj. Gen. L. D. Clay, director of material, Army Service Forces, said yesterday.

Clay told the House Military Affairs committee that Will Clayton, present surplus property administrator appointed by the President, was acting under the President's war powers, but agreed with committee members that the job would have to be carried on after the war, and that Congress would have to frame legislation.

No Nylons in Army

Several reports concerning waste in the disposal of surplus property by the War Department were disposed of by Clay and Julius H. Amberg, special assistant to Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson.

They took care of rumors concerning the Army burning handles of picks and shovels and selling the metal as scrap, but they confessed themselves baffled by rumors of sale of nylon hose at a nickel a pair. So far as they knew, they agreed, the Army was not peddling nylons at any price.

The pick and shovel yarn was traced back to a warehouse that caught on fire at Fort Benjamin Harrison. The Army had taken over a lot of property there from the WPA, and when a fire ruined the tools they were sold as scrap.

"Standby" Plants Urged

Representative Forrest Harness (R., Ind.), who has introduced a bill creating a board to dispose of surplus property, questioned War Department spokesmen about a proposal to sell 22 paid of women's silk hose, evening gowns and the like at Fort Mackintosh, Tex.

Reports will be checked, Amberg said, but officials said if such a sale was held it was probably stock from a post exchange that was being closed.

He reminded the committee that with Wacs and Army nurses to supply, the War Department handled a lot of women's gear.

Clay said that while the Army definitely wants to be relieved of the task of selling surpluses, it wants to retain the authority to determine what is surplus.

On the question of war plants the War Department spokesmen said that some should be retained as "standby" plants for at least five years, until the future military picture became clearer.

Take It Easy On Point-Free Food, OWI Asks

Although the present food situation is good, Americans should realize the point-free holiday for most meats and canned vegetables may be only temporary and be prepared for the possibility meat points will have to be restored if available supplies are not distributed evenly, the Office of War Information declared last night.

"We will probably have rationing of one typee of food or another off and on until the war is won," the OWI report stated.

"A major factor which might cause the War Food Administration to request a restoration of point values on currently point-free meats is the possibility that the available supply may not be distributed evenly."

Home Canning Urged

Housewives must do a bigger job of canning fruits and vegetables this year, the survey stressed, for supplies of canned fruits and juices will continue low and "present estimates of civilian supplies indicate the restoration of points on a number of canned vegetables rationed in the past."

Victory gardeners and home canners should pay particular attention to tomatoes and other foods rich in Vitamin C, OWI said, because there is "little margin" on the supply of this ingredient.

Both butter and chicken will be shorter in supply than in 1943, but there will be more margarine, shortening and edible oils, and there still are so many eggs civilian consumption of them should be "continued at a high rate."

"Regardless of the reduction in point values of many foods," OWI said, "the problem of securing farm labor and food processing labor remains critical."

Fewer Choice Cuts

Other highlights of the report:

"Civilian supplies of the less popular cuts of meat, such as fat pork cuts and stewing beef, which are now at zero-point value, will probably remain point-free for the next several months.

"While the less popular cuts of pork, veal, lamb and mutton will more than likely remain point-free, barring maldistribution, it will probably be more difficult to get choicer cuts of these items later in the year . . .

"The civilian supply of the better grades of beef will be smaller later in the year than in the first six months. Military purchases of beef will probably increase. The civilian supply of the secondary cuts and lower grades of beef should remain plentiful, although the supply of steaks and roasts is not expected to be sufficient to meet an unrationed consumer demand . . ."

Maryland-District Federation Of Labor Concludes Convention

Cumberland, Md., May 25 (AP).—Representatives of the Maryland and District of Columbia Federation of Labor wound up their annual convention today after being cautioned by AFL President William Green that "the significance of our amazing production record seems to be overlooked by many people."

Green said of the postwar period that "we know now that the only way to establish sound and continuous prosperity in our country is to produce more, not less, and to create wider markets for our production by more bountiful and effective distribution among the great masses of consumers."

Governor Herbert O'Conor, a convention guest, said he favored State allocation of a portion of its postwar planning money to county and city governments on a matching basis to stave off unemployment.

Distribution of Work

"Such an arrangement would insure the widest distribution of work throughout the State because every county and all the metropolitan areas would have a hand in planning work," the State's chief executive declared.

"The American Federation of Labor has reduced time lost due to strikes by its members to the lowest figure in the federation's history," O'Conor said, challenging "any individual or any Federal agency to show it has done more than organized labor itself since Pearl Harbor.

All State officers were reelected as delegates rejected the candidacy of Charles S. Hill, seventh aspirant for one of the six vice presidencies. Hill, a Negro, received 86½ votes to the 352 polled by Charles B. McCloskey of Washington, the lowest vote received by the six incumbents.

Negro Plan Rejected

Delegates rejected a move by Negro members for representation on the executive board through election of members of their race to vice presidencies.

The issue came to the fore at today's final session when the laws committee recommended rejection of a resolution calling for an increase in the number of vice presidents from six to eight.

Approved resolutions call for the establishment of a 30-hour week as a means of spreading postwar employment; set up a program of apprenticeship to train youth, particularly returning war veterans; for the executive board to name a committee to combat all prohibition legislation, and to protest a reduction in the war bonus paid to merchant seamen.

A program of social security education was recommended in central and local unions and action was taken to make individual unions responsible for any damage to property by their members at the convention.

Senate Votes Huge Sum For More Landing Craft

Reinforcing the Navy's promises that "vast amphibious operations lie ahead," the Senate yesterday passed and sent to the White House legislation authorizing construction of an additional million tons of landing craft and other small vessels. The cost is estimated at $1,800,000,000.

London Quad Dies

London, May 25 (AP).—George, the smallest of the quadruplets born Monday to Mrs. Daisy Moxham, wife of an RAF flying officer, died tonight. The quads—three boys and a girl—have been in a specially heated and airconditioned ward at Southend Hospital.

Armour Ideas Make the Most of Meat

Armour's Star Ready-To-Eat Meats . . . Delicious!

It's a grand idea for supper on a broiling hot night. You can fix it in a jiffy, using slices of three different Armour's Star Ready-to-Eat Meats. It's cool and refreshing for your family or guests and as nourishing as a meat meal can be. For Armour makes these meats of fresh, wholesome, choice cuts. They're delicately seasoned, thoroughly cooked, all ready to slice and serve.

In center of large chop plate, place three green peppers or tomatoes which have been hollowed to form cups. Fill them with gherkins, stuffed olives and pickled onions respectively. Around edge arrange chilled slices of Armour's Star Old Fashioned Loaf (a blend of beef and pork) and Armour's Star Braunschweiger Liver Sausage. Alternate with Armour's Star Bologna Rolls—made by simply spreading slices of bologna with a mixture of cream cheese and horseradish, rolling and fastening with toothpicks. 1 lb. to 1¼ lbs. of Armour's Star Ready-to-Eat Meats will serve 4 people generously. Try it tonight.

Always Fresh

Mavis Cola is mixed right in the glass in your home - Each drink is made fresh to suit your own taste. A twelve ounce bottle of Mavis Cola Syrup costs Thirty Cents and is enough to make twelve tall glasses of the finest Cola you have ever tasted.

Mavis Cola Syrup is sold by all food stores. A Thirty Cent bottle makes twelve Full Five Cent glasses of delicious Cola Drinks.

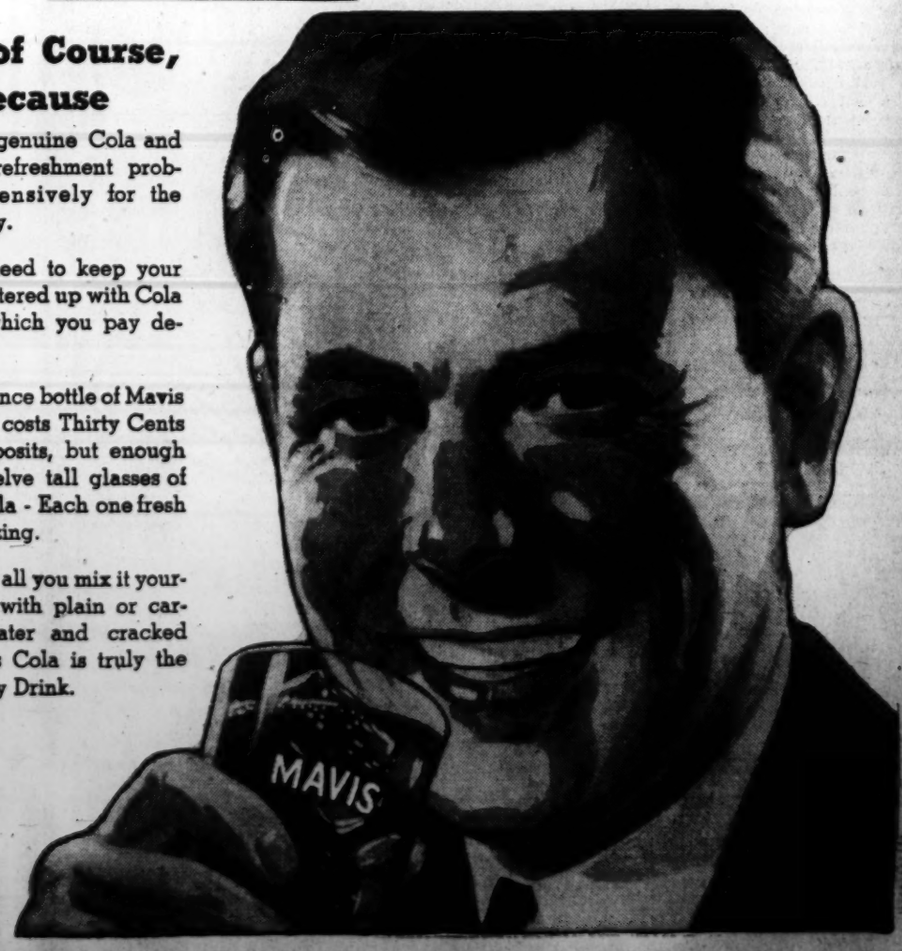
Better - of Course, - - Because

1. Mavis is a genuine Cola and solves the refreshment problem inexpensively for the whole family.

2. You don't need to keep your ice box cluttered up with Cola bottles on which you pay deposits.

3. A twelve ounce bottle of Mavis Cola Syrup costs Thirty Cents and no deposits, but enough to make twelve tall glasses of genuine Cola - Each one fresh and energizing.

And best of all you mix it yourself either with plain or carbonated water and cracked ice. Mavis Cola is truly the National Joy Drink.



The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

LONE-WOLF SENATOR LANGER of North Dakota has written a letter to the Secretary of the Navy asking how many light cruisers of the Omaha class have been turned over to Russia as a substitute for Russia's receiving one-third of the Italian fleet.

It will be recalled that, last winter, the President stated in a press conference that the Russian Ambassador had been to see him regarding plans for turning over one-third of the Italian fleet to Russia under the Italian armistice terms.

This conversation, in turn, dated back to last summer when Premier Stalin was complaining privately that he had not been consulted in advance regarding the first provisional armistice terms with Italy (at which time, incidentally, this correspondent got himself in the middle of some hot words regarding the State Department's attitude toward Russia.)

Later, at Teheran, the subject of the Italian fleet came up between Stalin, Roosevelt and Churchill, at which time Churchill demurred against giving Russia one-third of the Italian fleet and, instead, proposed that the United States and Great Britain give Russia some of their vessels.

Churchill's idea was that the Italian fleet, for some time operating under the British, in the Mediterranean, should be kept as a unit, since he felt it was performing an important mission in policing the Mediterranean against Axis submarines. Presumably also, the British Admiralty was not unaware of the fact that the Italian navy, recently built, contains some of the fastest and most modern vessels in Europe.

However, the whole question was postponed for future discussions after Teheran, and this was how the Russian Ambassador happened to take up the matter at the White House.

Question of U. S. Cruisers

Omaha-class cruisers, built around 1920, are 7000-ton vessels carrying 6-inch guns. Since they are all over 20 years old, they are out of date according to strict naval standards, though in excellent shape for convoy or patrol duty.

One of these cruisers, the Memphis, brought Lindbergh back to the United States after his historic flight across the Atlantic in 1927. They were the mainstay of the United States cruiser fleet in the 1920's, but since have been partially outmoded by 10,000-ton cruisers carrying 8-inch guns.

Senator Langer's inquiry into this matter is based largely on the question of whether the executive branch of the Government has the right to dispose of these cruisers without consulting Congress. He does not seek to pass judgment on the military strategy involved.

GOP Politics

THE OFFICE of War Information has filed a strong protest with the House Appropriations Committee regarding the activities of the committee's ranking Republican member, Representative John Taber of New York.

Congressman Taber, long a baiter of OWI, recently visited the New York office of the OWI, accompanied by a man he introduced as "one of my staff." He demanded that he be shown highly confidential files and reports on foreign propaganda operations.

Because Mr. Taber is one of the most powerful politicians in Congress and is in a position to wield the meat ax on OWI appropriations considered by his committee, OWI officials felt compelled to accede to his demand. They opened up their secret war files to the Congressman and the man he said was a member of his staff.

However, it later developed that the man who accompanied Taber was not an assistant of Taber's and never has been, according to a check of congressional payroll records. He is a press agent for the Republican National Committee, and since he is not connected with the Government in any capacity he is not therefore bound by oath to preserve the secrecy of the records he was wrongfully shown.

The gentleman in question is Percy Graves, astute publicity representative for the Republican National Committee.

Merry-Go-Round

IF THERE SHOULD be a merger of the Army and Navy, the fighting Marines will not lose their identity. Representative Mel Maas of Minnesota and other congressional sponsors of an Army-Navy merger have assured Gen. A. A. Vandegrift, Marine commandant, that his Devil Dogs will keep their individuality. Congressman Maas, himself an old Marine, feels that the battle feats of the Marines are due to pride in their long record. . . . It never leaked out at the time, but on December 7, 1943, the Army was worried over a possible token attack on Pearl Harbor as an anniversary raid. The whole island was alerted for fear the Japs would repeat their December 7, 1941, performance. . . . Judge Advocate General Myron Cramer is one of the herdest working officers in the War Department, getting at at 9 p. m.

The British Palestinian government has been holding up the passport visas of Bob Nathan and the commission of economists slated to go to Palestine, Nathan, one of the ablest members of the War Production Board, is to make a study to determine what population Palestine can really hold—if the British finally let him get there. . . . When the Government suddenly relinquished Montgomery Ward in Chicago, Jesse Jones didn't know about it until about 30 minutes before. His representatives in Chicago felt that the plant should be retained longer to straighten out some injustices to employes—specifically men unfairly fired by Montgomery Ward even while the Government officially ran the place.

Court in Session Monday

It was announced at Rockville yesterday that the Orphans' Court for Montgomery County will be in session on Monday instead of Decoration Day and will hold its usual Wednesday session next week. It was also stated all county employes that can be spared will be given Tuesday off.

State Rebekahs Install Officers

Roanoke, Va., May 25 (AP).—The annual meeting of the Grand Lodge of Virginia, IOOF, came to a clase here last night following the installation of new officers of the Rebekah Assembly, women's auxiliary of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows.

Mrs. Annie M. Furlow, of Norfolk, kas installed as president of the assembly; Mrs. Cora Hodges, of Covington, as vice president; Mrs. Leola Bellamy, of Fredericksburg, as warden; Mrs. Mabelle Reed, Newport News, chaplain; Mrs. Margaret Byers, Falls Church, marshal; Mrs. Madeline Kiser, Appalachia, conductor; Mrs. Carrie Carper, Winchester, inside guardian; Mrs. Hortense Shumate, Schoolfield, outside guardian, and Mrs. Creta Ludwig, Alexandria, musician.

Grand lodge officials were installed at noon yesterday with Morris G. Smith, of Farmville, succeeding W. E. Edwards, of Winchester, as grand master.

W. & L. Memorial Scholarship Set Up

Norfolk, Va., May 25 (AP).—Dr. and Mrs. Charles James Andrews, of Norfolk, parents of Charles James Andrews, jr., who was killed in action in Italy, have established funds to support a scholarship at the Washington and Lee University in memory of their son.

The gift has been acknowledged by Dr. Francis Pendleton Gaines, president of the university.

Young Andrews was killed while serving as ambulance driver with the British Eighth Army. He was a member of the American Field Service, having been granted a leave of absence from his position as instructor in English literature at the Norfolk division of the College of William and Mary. He went overseas in January, 1943, and was killed in December.

Wanted by Fleischmann! Good Judges of Good Whiskey To Try a Great New Brand!

TASTE! BODY! AROMA! These are the three qualities of a superb whiskey—and in Fleischmann's PREFERRED you find all three! The taste is rich, delicious! The body round, and full! The aroma, delicate!

Wouldn't You Like to Serve a Whiskey that has the Full, Ripe Richness of the World's Finest, Most Limited Brands? If you would, now you can! Read why!

• This invitation is written for the few men who are really good judges of good whiskey . . . who can appreciate a whiskey that is as gloriously rich, creamy and delicious as the world's finest, most limited brands—and who do not need a high price to confirm them in their judgment.

We set out several years ago to see if we could make such a whiskey. We spared no expense. We experimented. We drew from the world's choicest reserves. For the straight whiskies in this blend, we selected the world's finest grains, backed them up with the world's most delicate skill.

The result is—Fleischmann's PREFERRED, a remarkable whiskey. Velvety! Creamy! Full! Delicious! We are sorry that we can offer Fleischmann's PREFERRED only in limited amounts as all our distilling facilities are devoted 100% to the war effort. If your dealer has Fleischmann's PREFERRED, try it! You'll be glad you did!

THE WORLD'S GREATEST "MANHATTAN"? We say so! Take 1 dash of Angostura Bitters, ¾ oz. sweet vermouth, and 1½ oz. of Fleischmann's PREFERRED! Stir with ice, strain into 4-oz. glass, add one Maraschino cherry!

FOR AN "OLD FASHIONED" that tastes like cream—to ¼ level teaspoon granulated sugar, 2 or 3 dashes of bitters in an Old Fashioned glass, add just enough water to dissolve sugar. Muddle! Add ice cubes, 1½ oz. of Fleischmann's PREFERRED. Garnish with cherry, twisted lemon peel, or orange and pineapple!

FLEISCHMANN'S PREFERRED BLENDED WHISKEY

The straight whiskies in this product are 4 years or more old; 35% straight whiskies, 65% neutral spirits distilled from cane products. 90 Proof

With Cooking Fats Point-Free, Should I Still Save Used Fats?

"YES!"

—and here's why, says War Food Administration

Lee Marshall
Director of Distribution
War Food Administration

MAKING sure there are enough fats for both your kitchen and the war production machine is one of the responsibilities of the War Food Administration.

After a year in which both cooking and industrial fats were in short supply, the outlook for food fats has improved. This is because farmers have greatly increased their production of oil crops and livestock.

But abundant supplies of industrial fats continue to be needed to meet the increased demands of war production geared for invasion—as well as for civilian requirements.

With more used fats available for industrial use, we will have to divert less of our fresh food fats to war production.

We do not want to take good food fats and use them for non-food industrial purposes if it can be avoided. The conservation of used fats by every homemaker can help in this situation.

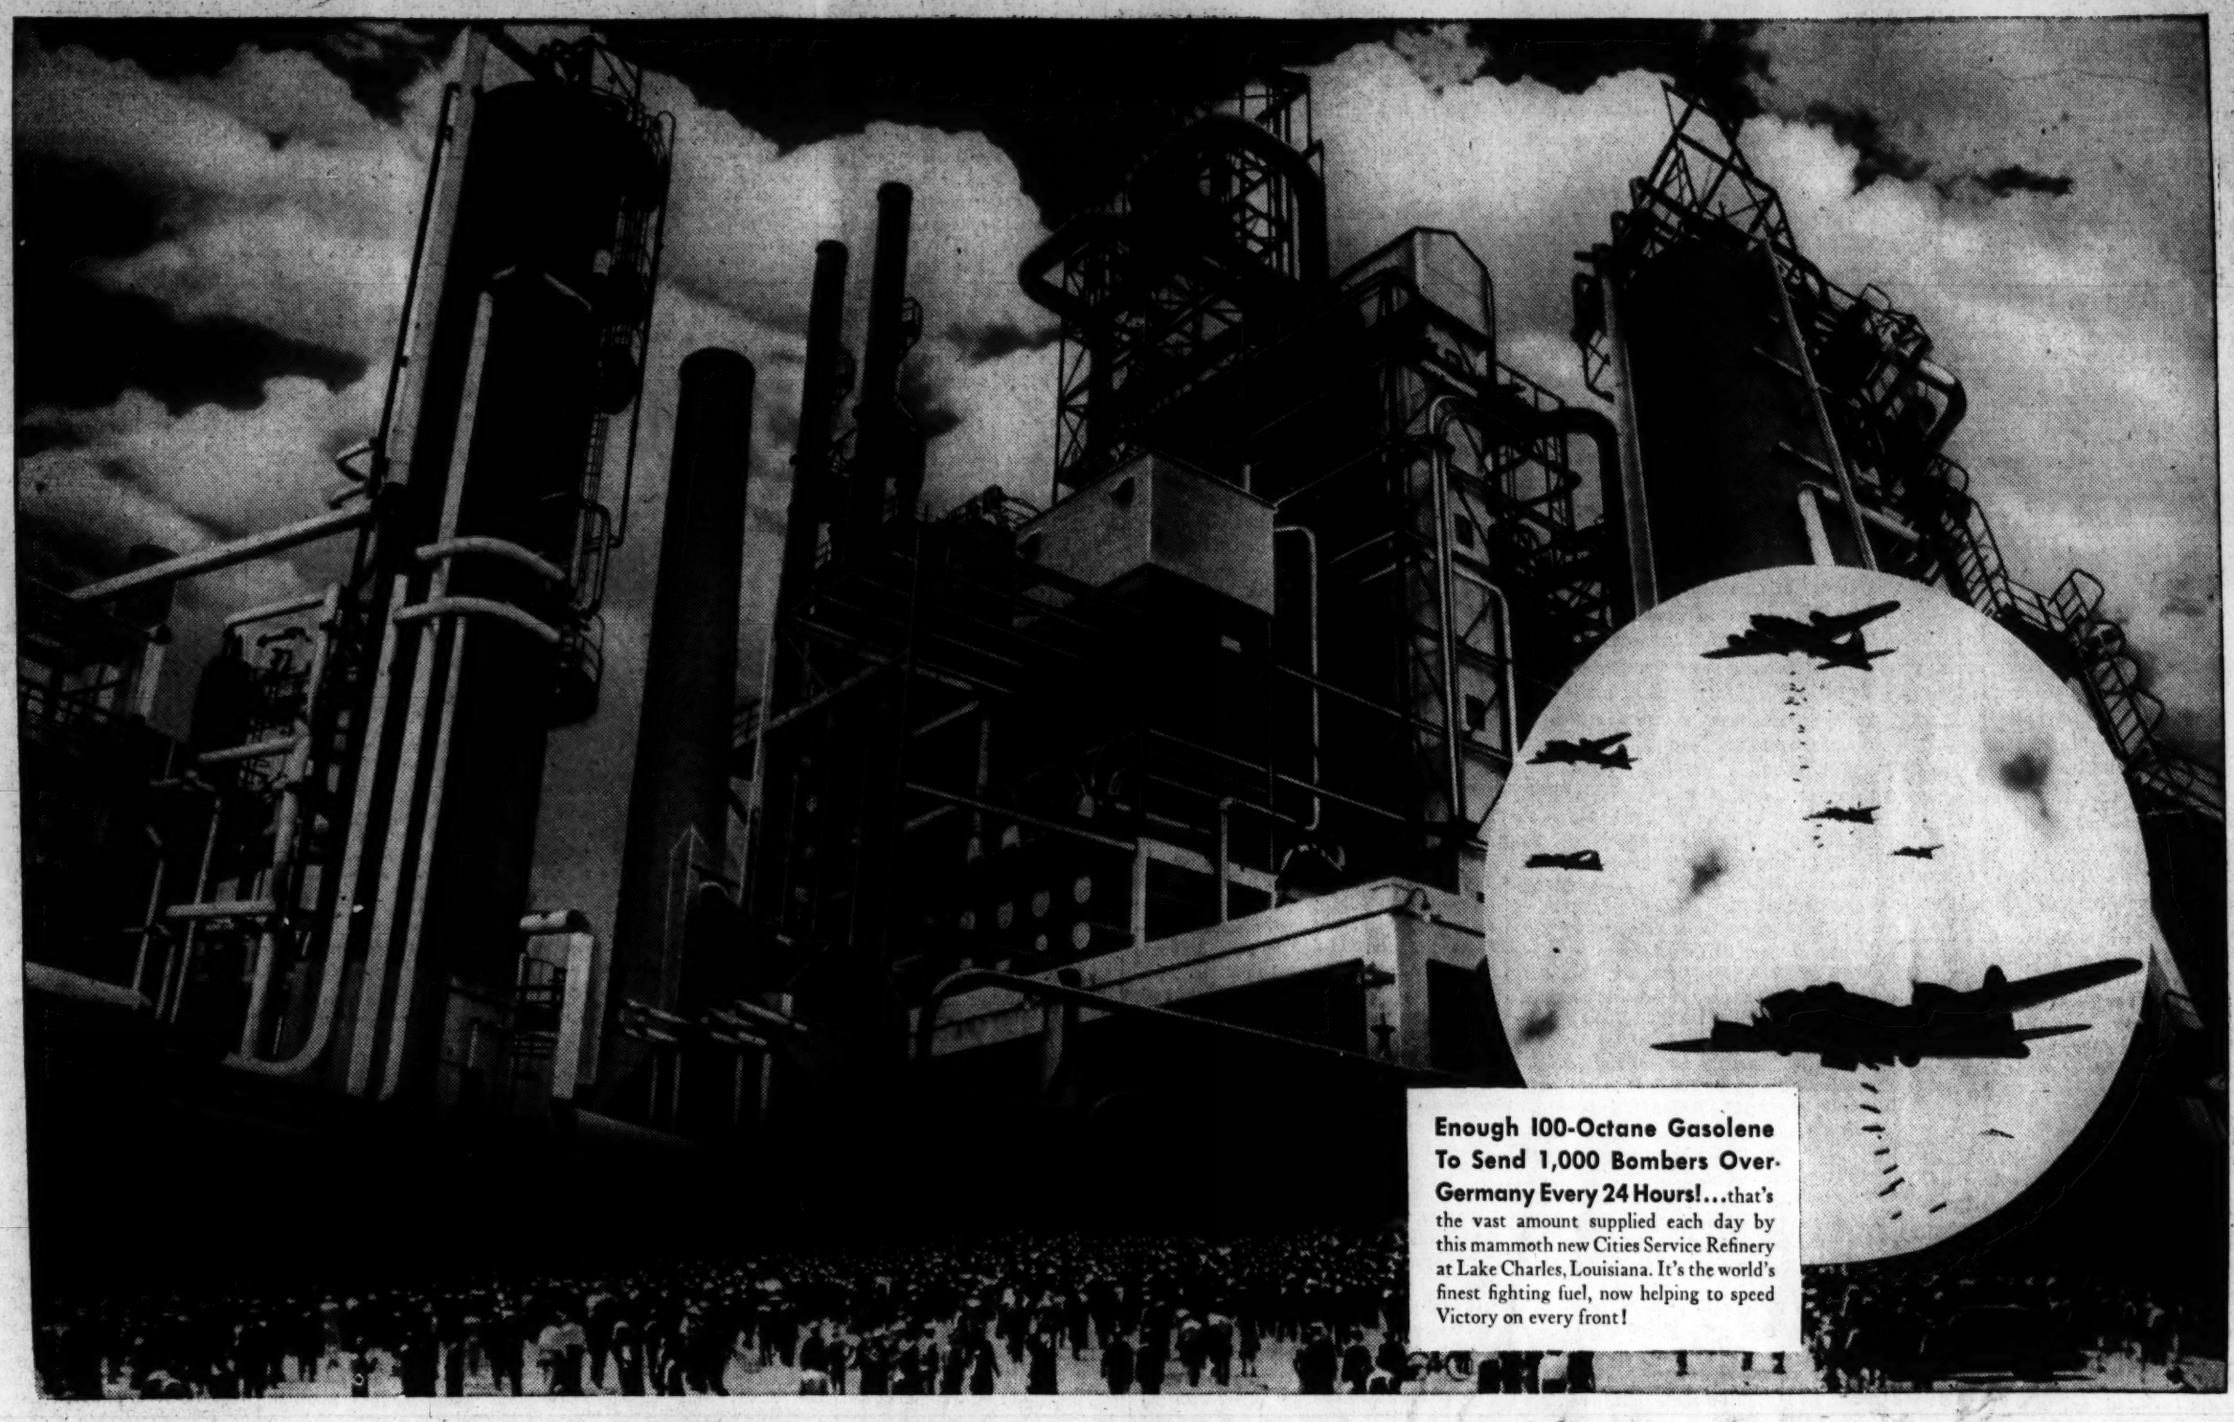
Therefore, we urge American women to save all their used cooking fats and turn them in to their butchers. These fats are vital in the making of such materials as synthetic rubber, parachutes, de-icing fluids for planes, explosives, life-saving medicines, industrial, military and civilian soaps and hundreds of other war necessities.

Increased production has helped give you point-free fats for your kitchen. By saving more used fats you help keep our food fats point-free—and our war machine rolling on to Victory.

Lee Marshall
DIRECTOR OF DISTRIBUTION
WAR FOOD ADMINISTRATION

For every pound of used fat, your butcher will give 4¢ and two red points. And remember, these points are doubly valuable now.

So let's save all the used fats we possibly can—and then some more! It's a real contribution to victory that every home can make!



Enough 100-Octane Gasolene To Send 1,000 Bombers Over Germany Every 24 Hours!...that's the vast amount supplied each day by this mammoth new Cities Service Refinery at Lake Charles, Louisiana. It's the world's finest fighting fuel, now helping to speed Victory on every front!

CITIES SERVICE
dedicates one of the world's largest 100-Octane and Butadiene Plants

With this giant plant at Lake Charles, Louisiana, Cities Service, in cooperation with the Government, takes a tremendous stride toward meeting two most vital war needs.

WHERE the pine trees grew on the banks of the sleepy Calcasieu River a few months ago, stands today this mighty symbol of American brain and brawn.

Sired by the necessity of war, the plant means more power to the armed forces, for it turns out great quantities of high-octane aviation gasolene and ingredients for synthetic rubber.

Created from the ground up, it includes the very latest, up-to-the-minute discoveries and inventions; and when peace comes, its efficiency will be devoted to higher standards of living everywhere.

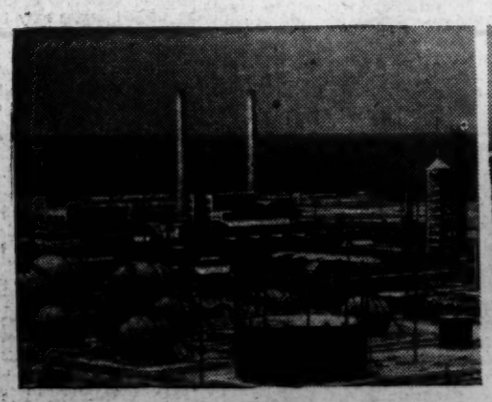
Wholly dedicated to bringing the war to an earlier close, this great accomplishment is an outstanding example of what can be achieved by the winning team of Government and Industry...working together, shoulder to shoulder, in the battle for Freedom and Peace.

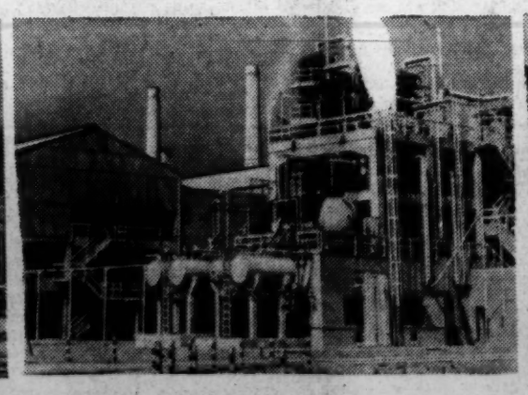
Enough Electricity to Light a City of 250,000 . . .
This giant turbine at the Lake Charles Refinery powers one of the two 25,000 KW electric generators that keep production going.

✓ CHECK LIST OF OUTSTANDING FACTS...

1. Built to a Master Plan, this is the world's first completely new, wholly integrated aviation fuel refinery and Butadiene plant.
2. Into its construction have gone 25,000,000 man-hours.
3. The Refinery alone covers 600 acres.
4. Powered by enough electricity to light a city of 250,000.
5. 275,000 gallons of water per minute are pumped into the refinery.
6. Produces enough 100-Octane Gasolene to send 1,000 bombers over Germany every 24 hours.
7. Will produce enough Butadiene to supply ten per cent of the nation's normal rubber demands.

FREE: handsomely illustrated booklet about one of the war's biggest industrial achievements, write Cities Service, Sixty Wall Tower, New York 5, N. Y.





10% of the Nation's Normal Rubber Demands...

When "V" Day Comes...
Our experience in making the world's finest fighting fuel will be devoted to producing a new and more powerful peacetime fuel for motorists everywhere.

District Budget

On the whole, Representative John M. Coffee and his colleagues of the District Appropriations Subcommittee did a commendable piece of work in shaping the District supply bill for 1945. Recognizing that the local budget had been in conscientious and able hands, the House accepted it with little debate and no change. Its vote of confidence in the subcommittee seems to imply also approval of that body's findings not embodied in the appropriations bill. We hope that proves to be the case—that legislation which goes to the heart of the District's governmental problems will soon be laid before the House.

"It is remarkable that we have the efficiency we do in Washington," Mr. Coffee told the House, "with such a conglomeration of agencies and such divided authority." Voteless citizens of the District have been telling Congress that for many years. Both Representatives Coffee and Stefan noted that the six-million-dollar Federal payment to the District has now fallen below 10 per cent of the total budget in spite of the manifold free services rendered to the Government by the District. They recognize also that local taxpayers are being overcharged for benefits the local community receives from St. Elizabeths Hospital, the National Zoological Park and various other Federal institutions. Certainly Congress ought to make a more liberal payment into District funds or assume a larger part of the direct expenses of institutions that serve both national and local purposes.

As to the 68-million-dollar appropriation bill itself, too much emphasis could easily be laid upon the fact that it is the largest in the city's history. Washington is also a larger city than ever before in history, and many prices which the city must pay have been raised. It is a matter of good fortune that the District is able to repay the last of its outstanding debts and to put aside a five-million-dollar fund for postwar improvements on top of its record-breaking 1945 budget. Many times that sum will be needed to bring the District's long-neglected institutions up to reasonable standards of public service after the war.

In spite of the subcommittee's thoughtful work, however, a number of relatively small but important items were left out of the appropriations bill as it passed the House. It was a serious mistake to eliminate the $30,000 requested for the Civilian War Services. The small staff paid by this fund keeps an army of many thousand volunteer workers functioning in this wartime Capital. Reverberations from the elimination of this sum would thus be felt through the Draft Aid Center, the Child Care and Protection Committee, the Consumers Nutrition Committee and many other community enterprises directly related to the war. The subcommittee also neglected to include a small sum for continuation of the psychiatric clinic at the Juvenile Court and for the housekeeping aides to relieve pressure on the city's overcrowded hospitals. Certainly these services should not be neglected by a community that is able to pay all its debts and put five million dollars into the kitty for future improvements. Fortunately, these minor adjustments can be readily made by the Senate.

Iniquitous "Riders"

House conferees on the independent offices appropriation bill have refused to accept the so-called McKellar amendments to that bill abolishing TVA's revolving fund and calling for Senate confirmation of all Government positions paying over $4500 yearly. If the House sustains its conferees, the Senate will have an opportunity to redeem itself by agreeing to drop these iniquitous "riders." One of them would deprive the TVA of the independent status accorded it by law and would go far toward sabotaging that agency. The other rider proposes a patronage grab of such an unblushing and destructive nature as to cast discredit upon every legislator who voted for it. A third Senate amendment accepted by the House conferees provides that Federal agencies set up by executive order must obtain direct authorization to spend or secure appropriations from Congress. That amendment is sound in principle, despite the fact that a good deal of support for it came from Senators who were "gunning" for the Fair Employment Practices Committee. As the appropriating agency of Government, Congress should put a stop to the loose practices that have arisen in connection with the financing of agencies established by executive order. Not only ought Congress to know what use is being made of funds that it has voted for the upkeep of Government, but it should insist upon its right to decide whether an agency set up without its approval shall continue to be supplied with funds.

Churchill's Survey

Winston Churchill has again taken the British into his confidence in another of his magisterial speeches on world affairs. The fact that the Prime Minister makes these regular reports is a testimony alike to British democracy as to Churchillian statesmanship. The British demand a periodical accounting of stewardship. It is taken for granted that they shall have it. By contrast the American people are asked to take their leadership on faith, and the President prefers to release tidbits of information, either at his press conferences or through favored journalists. A case in point is the story of what happened at the Teheran Conference. While the President gave out dribbles officially, and influenced informal comment in privileged magazine articles, the Prime Minister presented his report forthrightly to the Commons. That was his last address, the present address being devoted to what has happened since Teheran.

It will be remarked that the Prime Minister has grown in optimism since his Teheran survey. At that time Mr. Churchill was still suffering from the after-effects of his illness, and that might have accounted for his subdued tone. But on Wednesday he radiated confidence, even over the thorny political problems of warmaking.

One can always tell from the way he turns on his critics whether Mr. Churchill is feeling well. He goes after them without the slightest sourness, but with the most buoyant relish. In this manner he presented his compliments to the writers who are forever reminding the manipulators of policy that this is a war for the establishment of principles. "In one place," said Mr. Churchill, "we support a king, in another a Communist. We only want to beat the enemy, and then in a happy and serene peace let the best expression be given the will of the people." President and Prime Minister are as one in this victory-first attitude. We have no quarrel with it, so long as it is, in fact, realized in a way that will help the United Nations win both war and peace. After all, it was Mr. Churchill himself who in the dark days of 1940 said "This is no war of chieftains or of princes, of dynasties or national ambition; it is a war of peoples and of causes."

Certainly the victory of our arms or our cause hasn't been advanced by the expediency which has been shown in dealings with the French. For the backing and filling toward the French we can acquit the Prime Minister. He, like everybody else, has been led by the nose by the President, no matter how he explains himself. The policy, or lack of it, toward the French is the result of the stubbornness of Mr. Roosevelt. He simply doesn't like General de Gaulle. He feels that General de Gaulle wants to perpetuate himself in power. He will not listen to those who say that the risks we run in not burying the hatchet with De Gaulle before the invasion are far greater than those we invite by keeping it exposed. Perhaps the President is becoming less unbending as a result of the weight of opinion and logic which has recently been marshaled against his position. At any rate, he has acquiesced in the Premier's invitation to De Gaulle to visit London, an invitation which the French leader has accepted. If, at the eleventh hour, we can get the French Committee's counsel and concurrence on the interim arrangements for the governance of France in the wake of our liberating armies, there will be profound relief throughout the Allied world. Frenchmen know France. It is their country that is to be delivered, and the responsibility should be shared with a French authority for arrangements for administration, pending elections which will register the French choice. It would be a tragedy to leave to General Eisenhower civil decisions which, if they turn out to be mistakes, will be dubbed American mistakes, and may damage our future political relations irretrievably.

But if Mr. Churchill can be acquitted of purblindness toward France, he must bear the brunt of responsibility for the handling of Spain and Turkey. Yesterday we criticized Mr. Churchill's "kindly" references to Franco's Spain. We are impressed with the criticism of those references which has arisen all over England. It comes from men who, though they defer to military expediency, have not lost sight of the principles we are seeking to establish, and feel that the time has come to assert them. Spain remains a wolf, even though, with the progress of our arms, Franco has lately been putting on sheep's clothing.

Turkey is not so noxious a "neutral," but she is just as slick, as Mr. Churchill's survey shows. The story of Turkish blandishments, and how Mr. Churchill fell for them, is part of the Teheran history. Marshal Stalin saw the Turk in a different light. The President felt he hadn't enough information. Both of them agreed, however, to back Mr. Churchill, who, having gotten a pledge out of the Turks to join the grand alliance in return for 80 million dollars worth of arms, felt that the Turkish entry had been insured. Mr. Churchill's acerbity about Turkey on Wednesday was in part the product of his disillusion. He might have recalled Mr. Vishinsky's reputed warning that Turkey would make a decision when a decision was no longer necessary. As Mr. Churchill declared, "The course which has been taken so far by Turkey will not in my view procure for the Turks the strong position at the peace table which would attend their joining the Allies." In less restrained and elegant language, you can't take people for a ride, and get away with it.

The neutrals should realize that there would be a far greater chance that the political mode would be peace politics rather than power politics if the entire world were banded together against the Satanic irruption of Nazi Germany and militarist Japan. The battle between peace politics and power politics is not yet won, though Mr. Churchill was much more convincing this time that more than lip service is being paid by the Big Three to the plan for the creation of an institutional world society.

Dr. Hutchins Again

It appears that Dr. Robert Maynard Hutchins, whose educational theories have been agitating the academic world for a good many years, has now succeeded in dividing the faculty of the University of Chicago into two irreconcilable camps. Indeed, Dr. Hutchins' partisans and opponents on the faculty seem already to have joined battle, and the issue, which may involve Dr. Hutchins' further tenure of office as head of the university, will doubtless be decided by the trustees. As for the students, a poll taken by the campus newspaper, The Maroon, discloses that the great majority of them have no very clear notion of what the battle is all about.

Dr. Hutchins seems to want to reorganize the university program on something like the medieval formula, with a vastly greater emphasis on philosophy, logic, mathematics—in short, on the liberal arts, in the older meaning of the term—and his plan for lopping a full year off the period hitherto required for the degree of artium baccalaureus (without which, of course, no young American is, or was until very recently, deemed properly qualified for the business of answering telephones or of fetching ham-on-rye sandwiches and coffee in paper containers to fastidious copy readers). Dr. Hutchins' innovations have been actively or passively resisted by most of the older members of the Chicago faculty. At last the thing seems to have come to a crisis, and the university senate, in which the old guard appear to have control, has sent a memorial to the board of trustees, in which it was stated that the cause of intellectual liberty is at stake. Perhaps Dean Redfield of the division of social sciences came nearest to stating the real issue when he said that it is a showdown "between those who like to emphasize research and those who, like Dr. Hutchins, wish to stress good teaching."

We are not well enough informed about the controversy to take either side of it. But it does seem to us that Dr. Hutchins and his theories have lately been gaining a good deal of popularity. This, we suspect, is not because they are very thoroughly or clearly understood, but simply because of a profound and increasing conviction that there is something fundamentally wrong with the American higher educational system, and because Dr. Hutchins happens to have a radical recipe on tap.

Appian Way

When Allied troops of Lieut. Gen. Mark Clark's Fifth Army succeeded in pushing across the Appian Way, at a point southeast of Cisterna, the collapse of what remained of the western flank of the so-called Hitler Line became a final certainty. For, in the meantime, Terracina, on the main south Italian front, had been captured, and the German divisions in the coastal region below the Anzio beachhead were faced with entrapment. The result was the evacuation of that region by the enemy and a junction between the Allied forces moving up from Terracina and those on the beachhead.

The progress which the Allies have made in their present Italian offensive is nothing short of astonishing, and is in great and welcome contrast to the long stalemate that preceded it. In the course of 14 days the Allies have advanced as much as 60 miles. Nor is there any sign that this advance is about to end. Much depends on what Marshal Kesselring proposes to do. For the time being he is likely to retreat behind the defensive barrier of the so-called Rome Line, which he must hold if Rome is to remain in German hands. Reasons of prestige may dictate a bitter-end fight by the enemy to prevent the Eternal City from falling into our hands. But there is a possibility that in the face of rapidly growing difficulties a large-scale retreat to the north may be ordered.

In any event the junction of Allied forces in Italy is a most encouraging development, coming as it does on the eve of an attack on the Germans from the west. In Italy the Allies are providing the Germans with only a sample of what is in store for them. It will not make them happy.

UNIMPORTANT ELEGY

In each pool of consciousness
Is an island green as the early world.
If the live-oaks bend in the winnd of today
So they bent a hundred years ago
And the names of mares rippled like grass, as now
On a windy morning.

At will our thoughts can return to the musical hour,
Sunday noon chimes out from childhood's spire.
Then the world was only a leafy street or two,
The future high in the heavens, sparrow-small
That today drops like a falcon.

Minutes, violet-sweet, in the leaves of the hours
Were cool as water curling over the hooves of cattle
Past the white boulders of the days.
The wild boar in the thicket was still Quarry for the hunter.

Democratic Opposition

By Mark Sullivan

Threat To FDR

IN TWO STATES, Texas and South Carolina, Democratic State conventions have taken formal steps adverse to reelection of President Roosevelt for a fourth term. The steps were much more than mere opposition to renomination of Mr. Roosevelt as the party candidate, or mere expression of preference for another candidate. The steps amounted to threat not to support Mr. Roosevelt if he is nominated.

In Texas the State convention met and, after an early ballot, split in two. The Roosevelt supporters were the smaller group. They left the convention, went to a different hall, held a convention of their own, and named a slate of Roosevelt delegates to the Democratic National Convention at Chicago.

The regular convention proceeded to pass resolutions strongly critical of the Roosevelt Administration and of the New Deal, and named an uninstructed delegation to the national convention in July.

ONE RESOLUTION passed by the regular Texas convention amounted to a complex but direct threat. It said that if the Chicago naional convention does not seat the uninstructed delegation, and does seat the Roosevelt bolters' delegation—then the Texas electors in the Electoral College would not be bound to vote for the nominee of the national convention, presumably Mr. Roosevelt. Instead, the Texas electors should vote for "some other Democrat of their own choice."

This same threat that a State's electors in the Electoral College may vote against Mr. Roosevelt, is implied by an action of the South Carolina Democratic State Convention. It is an awkward way to make a threat, and if carried out would be still more awkward.

Without going into the complexities of the Electoral College mechanism, just what do these threats mean fundamentally? They mean that in the respective States, large numbers of Democratic voters—presumably a majority—do not want Mr. Roosevelt to have a fourth term. But they know he is practically certain to be nominated by their party. How then are they to make their opposition to him effective? The direct way is to vote for the Republican candidate in the November election. But party leaders do not like to recommend this. They try to find their way to oppose Mr. Roosevelt, but remain within their party. Hence the awkward device of threatened action in the Electoral College.

NEVERTHELESS, the real effect of the Texas and South Carolina conventions is to announce in effect that there is Democratic opposition to Mr. Roosevelt—not only for renomination, but also for reelection after he is nominated. The announcement will have its effect on Democratic voters, not only in the two States, but throughout the country. And many of these voters will take the direct way of expressing their opposition by voting for the Republican candidate.

The effect is not confined to the two States, nor to the South. To suggest that South Carolina might go Republican would be fantastic. Texas did go Republican in the 1928 Hoover-Smith election, as did four other Southern States. But the real effect of the Texas and South Carolina conventions will be on the Democratic voters in other States, on the border and in the North. While some of the Democratic opposition to Mr. Roosevelt is local to the South, much of it is common to South and North. In several States throughout the country the margin of Democratic majority in the 1940 election was very narrow. Any material defection of Democrats from Mr. Roosevelt would elect the Republican candidate.

Italian Guerillas

By Paul Winkler

Strongly Republican

LITTLE ATTENTION has been paid in Allied countries to the guerilla fighters of northern Italy. They deserve more.

Regularly organized military detachments are now operating in the mountains of this region. They have been formed of the remnants of the Italian army of occupation from France, and of deserters from the armed forces in Italy and from Mussolini's labor draft. Hiding in the mountains, they pounce on the plains from time to time, harassing both the German forces and the neo-Fascists, and committing innumerable acts of sabotage.

They have one chief handicap, which lessens their efficiency. various groups, each of which There is no unity among the acts independently. This is a possible field for Allied initiative—to create such unity, and as soon as possible, so that the activity of the Italian fighters can be coordinated with the all-over plan.

There are three main groups of guerillas. One operates in the Piedmont, another in Lombardy, north of Milan, and the third in the Venetian Alps. There are other smaller units—one in Tuscany, for instance. The Venetian group has established contact with Tito's army, and cooperates with the Italians in those forces. North of Verona, guerilla fighters recently carried on a two-day battle with regular German troops.

Territory Freed

The Swiss-Italian language paper, Popolo e Liberta, reports that in many points in northern Italy detachments named for the famous Italian fighter for liberty, Garibaldi, have not only succeeded in repelling Fascist attacks but have actually liberated many villages and even entire valleys from their control. Near Cuneo, considerable territories exist where the Fascist dare not enter. They recognize the "Garibaldian law" of the brigades whose authority is fully established there.

The Fascist authorities have recognized by implication the extent of Partisan recruiting activity in the north in reporting some of their recent arrests. Thus Patriot Pietro Broglia was admittedly arrested in Arona, in the Piedmont district, for being connected with a large recruiting organization which was enlisting young people of all classes and opinions for the guerilla forces. Gen. Raoul Chiarotti was jailed for the same reason in the mountainous region near Bergamo.

The coordination of the present individual efforts of these groups would be of the greatest importance to the promotion of the Allied war effort. The United Nations could easily manage it. All that would be necessary would be to establish on Allied territory, preferably in Corsica, but possibly in Algiers or even England, a headquarters for the coordination of all Partisan activity in Italy. One or several Italian leaders whose names would evoke a response from the Italian fighters (several such personalities are available) should be established there. The chosen man or men, who would become a symbol of resistance for the fighting Italians, should then be given full facilities (radio transmitting stations, aid to agents circulating between Italy and headquarters, etc.) to make possible the centralized direction of the fight. In other words, the idea would be to follow the example set by the British in cooperating with General de Gaulle between 1940 and 1942, which made it possible for all French resistance to crystallize about him. It is too often forgotten today how much the Fighting French aided the Allied war effort in that period.

Italian de Gaulle

The question might be asked: "Do the Allies want to assist in the emergence of an Italian De Gaulle today?" It would seem that any broad, long-range view of their interests would cause them to seek such a solution, for though a genuinely anti-Fascist Italian leader would be perhaps less immediately submissive to their wishes (since he wouldn't, like Badoglio, be in the position of having to seek forgiveness for past sins), yet he would be able to build up an independent Italy much closer to the Allies in political aims than any state which could be constructed by former Fascists or slick politicians of the former regime, like some of those now operating in southern Italy.

The England of today is not, of course, quite the England of 1940, which turned with gratitude towards De Gaulle. Then she was quivering under German bombs, and expecting invasion hourly. Danger sometimes clarifies the issues, and forces the necessary solutions upon governments because urgency forbids following any route towards safety except the shortest.

Today a more secure and consequently more complacent England is able to believe that she has time to resort once more to old-fashioned diplomacy and temporization. She can think of her attachment to monarchic traditions, and believe, perhaps, that Italians are in agreement on that score. But the patriots in the North are fighting in the line of the traditions of Mazzini and Garibaldi, and are, in the great majority, strongly republican. Leaders capable of heightening, canalizing and directing their enthusiasm to the ends most useful for the common democratic cause cannot be men of views different from those of the Italians who today are fighting for the Allied cause. That is the situation of fact. Are England and the United States ready to face it?

Presidential Messenger

In this morning's issue of The Post appears an article by Robert C. Albright, in which he states that Vice President Wallace "left Washington yesterday on a mission to China and Soviet Asia," in the role of "presidential messenger." By what authority does the President send the Vice President out of the United States as a messenger, thereby making it impossible for the Vice President to perform his constitutional duties while he is away? Certainly not as Commander in Chief of our armed forces, of which Mr. Wallace is not a member. Mr. Wallace was not elected by the people to serve as a presidential "special messenger." He cannot, certainly, while in China or in Soviet Asia, preside over the Senate, which is one of his constitutional duties.

Now, if, while he is away, anything should happen to the President which may require the Vice President to act in his stead, could Mr. Wallace so act immediately. How are Mr. Wallace's expenses to China being paid? No matter out of what fund they will be defrayed, that fund, no doubt, came from the taxpayers, many of whom, I venture to say, do not agree with Mr. Wallace's views as expressed in recent speeches, and therefore do not want him to go on any mission to China.

The office of Vice President is a constitutional office, and he is not an appointee of the President or of the Congress. As Vice President, Mr. Wallace, I understand, receives a salary of $15,000 a year, paid to him, of course, out of the taxpayers' money. Will Mr. Wallace, while in China, and while in a situation where he cannot perform his duties as Vice President, accept his salary?

The foregoing are questions which perhaps some one can answer for the benefit of the taxpayers who indirectly are putting up the money for Mr. Wallace's trip if his expenses are paid out of any executive fund appropriated by Congress.

Editorial Page

When the paper comes in the morning the first page I read, after the headlines, is the editorial page. The one this morning was especially good. I often clip an editorial and send it to one of my many nephews in the armed services. I call these items "dinner conversation" as matters I would talk over with them if we were dining together. I have no doubt they talk over the items at dinner with their friends.

Today's editorials were unusually interesting. For instance I sent "Dangerous Symptoms" to a medical nephew in the Army and an engineer nephew in the Navy, both of whom have read "Under Cover." To the medical officer also goes "Health Insurance" since we have discussed that many times and "Progress in Burma" since he is just back from India.

To the engineer nephew in the Navy goes "Managerial Right" because he is officer over many men who discuss labor matters. Since he is now located in Louisiana, I sent him also "Strike Three."

To another whose home was in Los Angeles goes the editorial on "Hollywood's Hitler," for Dick has often griped about the unreality of the movies.

I don't always agree with your editorials but I consider them the most stimulating of any newspaper.

Garnishment Bill

The House has passed, and the Senate is now considering, a bill permitting garnishment of salaries of Federal and District employes. The bill, we are told, is to put Government employes on the same legal basis regarding debt as other wage earners. That is the same reasoning as the argument used some years ago by Senator McKellar when he added four days a year to the working time of the Federal employes without raising their pay. Their leave was to be brought down to the level prevailing in private employment. In both cases the argument is based on a false premise. Gentlemen of the Congress, the words private and public are not synonymous—they are antonyms, if you know what I mean. In other words, public and private services are wholly different and cannot be treated alike.

For a long time our civil service was considered an eleemosynary institution, a haven of refuge for unemployable politicians. That crude notion was shot down and out by Guiteau's gun. It is now recognized more and more widely that the service is an institution organized to do the work of the Government and ought to be treated as such. The men and women in the service ought not to be harassed in their work by private interests, directly or indirectly. In reducing the employes' leave by four days, Mr. McKellar completely ignored the difference between private and public workers—the Federal employes had to accept that arbitrary decision without protest; private employes would have gone on strike.

The McKellar measure did not improve the morale of the force, and the garnishment bill will not improve it either. The bill, we are told, touches only the employes. That is a neat piece of euphemism, for the law will also put the employer, the United States Government, on the same legal basis as other employers. The Government will become an agent, a trustee, and collector of debts for careless merchants. J. J KRAL.

Nauseating Smoke

Mr. G. E. Kidder Smith in The Post of May 19 calls attention to the distress and even suffering caused to other passengers by the smoking of cigars in railway trains. I agree. He suggests that cigar smoking be prohibited on trains or that certain cars be marked for use by smokers of "cigarettes only."

Unfortunately, many of us have a wider allergy than your correspondent, and are nauseated or greatly discomforted by cigarette smoke, perhaps even more so than by the cigar which is obnoxious to him. His remedy does not go far enough. Why not go back to the practice of having certain cars or compartments marked "No Smoking" and enforce the requirement that those who wish to burn the weed shall do so in smoking cars or compartments?

Canol Agreements

By Janet R. Keith

Canadian Interests

A NEW AGREEMENT stating explicitly what the United States will get out of Canol after the war has just been tabled in the Canadian House of Commons. Since the United States Government decided several months ago to discontinue its exploratory and drilling program in connection with Canol, all original contracts have been renegotiated. In tabling the government order covering the new agreement, the Canadian Minister of Mines and Resources gave a brief history of the Canol project to date.

It was in June, 1942, that the United States Government first proposed that it be allowed to make certain developments at the Norman Wells oilfield, which lies in Canadian territory about 100 miles south of the Arctic Circle. At that time the military situation in the North Pacific looked very grave. Japanese forces were in the Aleutians. Shipping losses were heavy and tankers scarce; and the prospect of a Japanese submarine campaign directed mainly at coastal tankers made it imperative that United States forces have a source of oil in the northwest area safe from enemy attack. Under these circumstances, Canada readily agreed to the United States proposals.

Exchange of Notes

Four exchanges of notes between the Canadian and American Governments gave the United States permission to enter into contracts with a Canadian company to drill wells on territory held by the company; construct a pipeline from Normal Wells to Whitehorse, in the Yukon, capable of carrying 3000 barrels a day; erect refinery facilities at Whitehorse; erect oil storage at Prince Rupert and construct a pipeline from Skagway to Whitehorse; carry out an extended exploratory and drilling program throughout the Canadian northwest to find additional sources of oil which could produce from 15,000 to 20,000 barrels daily.

Following the understandings reached by the two governments, the United States War Department entered into contracts with Imperial Oil, Ltd. (a subsidiary of Standard Oil of New Jersey), requiring the company to deliver 3000 barrels of oil daily at a fixed price of $1.25 a barrel (plus production costs), the United States Government financing under certain conditions the costs of developing additional deliveries of oil.

The United States War Department has proceeded with the construction of pipelines from Norman and Skagway to Whitehorse, and erected the storage facilities at Prince Rupert. Several weeks ago the refinery at Whitehorse was formally opened. To date the United States has spent 134 million dollars on these projects.

Now that the military situation in the North Pacific has altered completely, the United States Government has decided that there is no military necessity for increasing the capacity of the Norman Wells-Whitehorse pipeline nor for continuing the exploratory or drilling program. It has therefore been found necessary to renegotiate the original contracts and to draw up a three-way agreement clarifying the future position of the United States Government, the Canadian government and Imperial Oil, Ltd.

Dominion Pays One-third

The Canadian government and Imperial Oil, Ltd., have agreed that the share of the government in the proven field will be set at one-third. The Dominion will pay one-third of the actual direct cost of producing the oil, plus a management fee of 10 per cent; in return the government will receive a one-third share of the oil and a royalty of 10 per cent on the one-third share included in the old leases.

Imperial Oil, Ltd., may give an option to the United States Government to purchase for its own use at 20 cents a barrel (plus production costs) up to one-half the oil recovered from the proven area, not exceeding 30 million barrels. The United States must take its oil currently as the field is produced, at the rate of 20 per cent of the total amount currently produced for export. Also the United States may be given an option to purchase, under the same conditions, 10 per cent of any oil that may be found in the remainder of the permit areas, up to 60 million barrels (including that obtained from the proven field). The United States Undersecretary of War, Robert Patterson, calls the new agreement "a matter of insurance that in the future the defense of the continent will not be endangered as it was early in 1942 by lack of locally produced oil."

Canada, dependent on the outside world for more than 85 per cent of her oil, would like to see the northern oil fields developed commercially. But there are practical obstacles. A pipeline large enough to make commercial operation feasible would cost an estimated $60,000,000; a reserve of not less than 300 million barrels would have to be found to warrant such an expenditure. In addition, Fort Norman lies 1500 miles by land and water from the nearest Canadian city, Edmonton, and the closest outlet for oil is 700 miles across the mountains to the Pacific. When it reaches the coast the oil must be shipped by tanker to markets in southern British Columbia, and there it comes into competition with California oils.

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz

Committee Sets $10,000 For 6 Top WPB Salaries

WPB: The salaries of the five vice chairmen and the general counsel of the War Production Board were set at $10,000 each yesterday by the House Appropriations Committee. Four other vice chairmen are paid a dollar-a-year. The committee noted with pleasure that WPB's personnel had slumped from a peak of 22,900 to 16,327 on April 1 and by June 30, 1945, the number is estimated at 12,586. It praised the board for eliminating unnecessary personnel, seeking better methods of doing business, and of bringing about operating economies. House investigators reported only minor criticisms of the agency following an inquiry. WPB's budget was cut $2,394,000 of which $1,500,000 was for research, and $10,000 for proposed production clinics.

CAS: The committee voted to eliminate this agency—Central Administrative Service—but it appeared a little confused itself how it was to be unscrambled and its functions distributed among the other war agencies that it serves. The committee suggested that the war agency switchboard be operated by the Public Buildings Administration and that the duplicating work be turned over to WPB and that these units continue to serve the new war agencies. CAS said it could continue to handle the work with an appropriation of $5,671,921 compared to $2,968,701 which the war agencies estimated it would cost them to do their own auditing, procurement, mail and messenger service, printing, and other services. The committee was skeptical that the cost could be reduced in half and it cut the CAS budget request by only $1,350,000.

OFFICE OF STRATEGIC SERVICES has a "dream" appropriation. The committee recommended that it get 57 million dollars for 1945, a 22 million dollar increase. But it may spend 37 million dollars without accounting to anyone—no General Accounting Office, Budget Bureau or Civil Service Commission to tell it how it must spend the money. For the first time, incidentally, some of the testimony of Brig. Gen. William J. Donovan, director of OSS, was printed. In past years nothing whatever was heard of this super-secret agency which functions under the Joint Chiefs of Staff. OSS is engaged in intelligence work and it has bases in each war theater. The bases will be substantially increased under the larger appropriation.

OWI: Employes of the much-criticized Office of War Information can take a bow. The House committee whacked off six million dollars from its budget, but it heaped more praise on the agency than it has ever received from Congress. The report said the committee believes the agency "is making a valuable contribution to the war effort and in direct aid of the military operations." Members inspected the overseas office in New York and found "its personnel enthusiastic and highly interested in the work they are doing." A previous report from the committee's own investigators carried the minimum of criticism. General Marshall and other bigwigs praised the OWI. The domestic branch was cut $264,633, which will mean a slash in the Washington staff if it stands. Specifically, it ordered the elimination of the surveys division which takes a sort of Gallup poll on the effect of domestic war programs.

CENSORSHIP: Director Byron Price revealed to the committee that he offered to release all the physically able Navy men under 38 in his office for sea duty. Most of the young men, he said, have been replaced or are in the process of replacement. Of the 1440 Navy personnel in Censorship, 454 are now Waves. Only three are under 30 and 103 of the 125 between the ages of 30 and 38 are being sent to active duty. The Army has only 9 commissioned officers stationed at Censorship. Despite a big increase in the volume of prisoner mail, the office plans to operate with 1552 fewer civilians than it had authorized a year ago. The budget calls for 12,771 compared with 14,323 for 1944. The committee left the door open for censorship to ask for a deficiency appropriation by observing that $300,000 must be given in automatic promotions during the year and no special provision is made for it.

OFFICE OF CIVILIAN DEFENSE will be reduced to a mere 132 people after July 1. At one time it had 1142 fulltime employes. It also will have 27 assigned from the Army and 6 from the Public Health Service. . . . CCPA: The committee refused the entire budget request for $669,000 for the Committee for Congested Production Areas. It suspected it was overlapping the work of other Federal agencies, and anyhow, it believes the congestion phase is over and local communities can now work out their own problems. . . . The Senate yesterday approved the Randolph bill which would give clerical-mechanical employes of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing a 15 per cent night differential. An amendment was added which would deny the 15 per cent to employes while they're on leave. The bill now goes back to the House. . . . And the Senate also okayed the two House-approved Rees bill which would speed up refunds from the Civil Service retirement fund.

Safety Parley Hears Pleas to Curb Mishaps

Roanoke, Va., May 25 (AP).—Governor Colgate D. Darden, who was unable to be present at today's opening session of the 10th Annual Virginia Statewide Safety Conference, was reelected to serve for the next year as the organization's general chairman at the initial meeting held this morning.

At noon approximately 500 delegates had been registered, but a large number of other persons attending had not been listed. Total attendance is expected to reach 2000 for the two-day session.

Governor Darden, who is attending the annual U. S. Governors' Conference in Harrisburg, Pa., sent a message, which was read by Col. Parke P. Deans, of Richmond, member of the State Industrial Commission. Governor Darden referred to the Conference as "one of the most vital conferences in the history of the seate," and added:

"Never was there a more crying need that every ounce of manpower and womanpower be conserved in safety than today." He quoted statistics showing that accidents have been on the increase in Virginia since 1939.

Rising Toll Cited

Another speaker, Norman Damon, of Washington, vice-president of the Automotive Safety Foundation, hammered home the following points:

During the last 40 years, deaths from accidents have increased five per cent, while they have decreased 41 per cent from all other causes.

Since Pearl Harbor, some 350,000 workers have become industrial 4-Fs because of accidents. In traffic alone since Peral Harbor, 54.000 persons have been killed—half of them war workers—and nearly 2 million injured.

Also, despite the fact that 6 million fewer cars are now in use with 5000 or more leaving the road daily and with mileage at 60 per cent of prewar, traffic deaths have shown an unbroken increase for six successive months:.

Fitzpatrick Reelected

The conference also reelected Victor B. Fitzpatrick, of Richmond, executive chairman; Ernest W. Lemay, Richmond, treasurer, and Col. William M. Myers, Richmond, executive secretary. Mr. Fitzpatrick also was unable to be present and preside at the morning meeting, but is expected to arrive from New York in time for this evening's banquet session. His place as presiding officer was filled by Col. Marion S. Battle of Lexington.

Most incumbent members of the executive committee, headed by Mr. Fitzpatrick as chairman, were reelected, but a number of new members also were named, including Blair Amole, Richmond; Robert W. Edwards, Roanoke; J. Vaughn Gary, Richmond; Crawley F. Joyner, jr., Richmond; D. W. Naff, Roanoke; Maj. James R. Nunn, Richmond, and Charles Ray, Richmond.

Col. Battle explained the election was "moved up" from the originally scheduled Friday afternoon in order to prevent "last minute confusion."

Venable Memorial Seat Is Created At U. of Virginia

Charlottesville, Va., May 25 (Spl.).—The Charles Scott Venable annual lectureship in traumatic surgery has been established at the University of Virginia by Dr. Charles S. Venable, jr., one of the leading surgeons of Texas, as a memorial to his father who was for 30 years professor of mathematics at the University.

This new lectureship is supported by royalties from the sale of a new adjustable splint designed by Dr. Venable and now in general use throughout the United States and Canada.

His father, Colonel Venable, served during the Civil War on the staff of Gen. Robert E. Lee through his most important campaigns. He was one of the group of scholarly officers of the Confederate States who laid down their arms and took up the task of keeping alive higher education in the South. He was professor of mathematics at the University of Virginia from 1866 to 1896.

Blair to Graduate 164

Montgomery Blair High School, Silver Spring, will award diplomas to 164 graduated at the commencement on June 13, Dr. Edwin W. Broome, county superintendent of schools, has announced. The list includes 160 girls and 58 boys.

TRAFFIC TIPS AND QUIPS
MANY A GUY WHO TRIES TO PASS EVERYTHING ON THE ROAD ENDS UP FOLLOWING A WRECKER!
NATIONAL SAFETY COUNCIL

Speed too fast for conditions continues to be the largest single contributing cause of traffic accidents in Virginia, say the Virginia State Police. It is resulting in a high loss of life and tremendous property damage. Police accident reports show 1049 noncollision accidents for the year of 1943, and 3243 accidents as a result of too much speed

Va. Board Studies Conversion Of Army Camps After War

Richmond, Va., May 25 (AP).—Conversion of abandoned Army Camps into State forests, game preserves or some other useful public projects, may be undertaken as a postwar endeavor by the State Conservation Commission, it was learned today.

George Prince Arnold, assistant commissioner, in a report prepared for the travel-trade committee of the State Planning Board, said the commission "is very much interested in the question of what is to be done with abandoned Army camps."

Investigations of the commission, however, have indicated that Federal authorities have reached no decision on this problem, he said.

Arnold, in his report on postwar possibilities to increase travel and trade, said "there is every reason to believe recreational areas in the Shenandoah National Park and in the national forests will be developed to a very considerable extent by the Federal Government after the war.

"Likewise the Virginia Skyline Company, Inc., will add greatly to the lodging and restaurant facilities along the Skyline Drive. In the past two years the demand for such lodgings and other accommodations, all of which were closed during that time, has been heavy in spite of gasoline restrictions and congested rail and bus travel.

Arnold reported that there is need for additional tennis courts, croquet and badminton grounds and other play areas, and for indoor recreational establishments.

"With this in mind, the park division is considering the possibility of acquiring some of the extremely well-built and equipped service clubs in Army camps that may be abandoned after the war."

He said it appears to be impractical to have farm homes provide low-cost vacations for city families.

"The regional organization of farmers and private land holders to provide hunting areas for sportsmen is a practical project, however, and one that might well be developed with profit in many areas of the State."

U. S. Not Built On 'Formulas,' Farley Says

Salisbury, Md., May 25 (AP).—James A. Farley, former Postmaster General and once national Democratic chairman, asserted tonight that after the war the people's task will be "to bear in mind that the United States was not built upon formulas."

In an address prepared for delivery before a joint dinner of the Salisbury Kiwanis and Rotary clubs, Farley outlined the history of the United States thus far as dependent upon the pioneering spirit and initiative of the individual, saying:

"It is for us to preserve for our posterity what our forefathers created for us, a Nation of free people, ever helpful to others, but always selfish for the continuance, within our domain, of the American way of life."

After recounting national achievements, Farley declared that "all of this national greatness comes back fundamentally to the American as an individual. Only sound men can make a sound nation. . . .

"There have been nations, like Germany and Japan, that exalted their efficiency. But the test of 1943 and 1944 has shown that efficiency is not created by the mere proclamation of an intention to be efficient. Efficiency rises from the strength of a free people. . . .

"Our task, as we look to the future beyond this war, will be to uphold in spite of the suggestions of those who have formulas for security, to bear in mind that the United States was not built upon formulas, it was built upon the individual."

State to Audit Books Of Confederate Home

Richmond, Va., May 25 (AP).—An audit of the books and records of the Home for Needy Confederate Women will be made by L. McCarthy Downs, State auditor of public accounts, at the request of Mrs. Andrew Jackson Montague, president of the institution, Governor Darden announced yesterday.

The Governor said the audit was asked because of discussions over the action of the General Assembly in reducing the State's pension allowance to the 13 inmates of the home from $12 and $15 a month to $5 a month.

Full-Time Fire Chief Asked in Salisbury

Salisbury, Md., May 25 (AP).—City council had under consideration today a recommendation by Mayor I. Virgil Hitchens that a full-time, salaried fire chief be named to direct the Salisbury fire department.

In presenting his appointments to the council, the Mayor censured what he called "drinking and gambling and other things which I'd rather not mention" in the fire house.

Charles Town Assails 'Spite' Bus Line Act

Charles Town, W. Va., May 25 (AP).—James M. Mason, 3d, Charles Town city attorney, said today he had led with the Public Service Commission a complaint asserting R. L. Emory, jr., operator of the Emory Motor Coach Lines, had failed to abide by the provisions of his PSC certificate.

The State Supreme Court several days ago decided that Emory must comply with the Charles Town ordinance regulating parking of motor buses, but Mason said Emory now had begun parking the buses outside the town limits. Emory's buses ply between Charles Town and Martinsburg.

Mason said he told the commission that theordinance was felt to be necessary to regulate "traffic conditions" caused by buses being parked in an area which required free movement of traffic.

The city attorney contended that the PSC certicate issued to Emory required that he stop in Charles Town instead of Ranson, a suburb.

Maryland OPA To Investigate Worcester Rents

Baltimore, May 25 (AP).—Maryland Price Administrator Leo H. McCormick said today that an investigation of rents charged in Worcester County had been undertaken to determine whether rent control should be imposed in the area.

McCormick said that Lucien E. D. Gaudreau, Maryland district rent executive, had received complaints from a great many residents of the lower Eastern Shore county that an unwarranted number of decided increases have been effected, particularly in Pocomoke City and Ocean City.

Gaudreau said an intensive investigation was being made since there were reports of high rents from summer resorts and from the naval auxiliary air station in Chincoteague, Va.

If the rent survey shows an inflationary tendency, McCormick declared, immediate action toward instituting rent control will be recommended.

Slogan Winner Named

Winchester, Va., May 25.—A ninth grade student's slogan "Careless Ways Cause Painful Days" has been selected winner in the Junior Board of Trade safety slogan contest. The author, Nancy Kaine, will receive a cash prize at a recognition ceremony later.

College Heads Hit Plan to Quit State Support

Richmond, Va., May 25 (AP).—Student rather than State support of instructional expenses in State colleges—discussed at the 1944 session of the General Assembly—would save the State some $1,750,000 at an additional cost to the students of from $75 to $225 a year, estimates based on 1941-42 figures showed today.

A survey of institutions of higher learning brought expressions from a number of college officials that withdrawal of such State support would have an adverse effect on education in Virginia.

Would Alter Make-up

Such a change, it was stated, would tend to alter the make-up of the student bodies by increasing the proportion of out-of-State students, would drive some Virginia students to institutions in other States, and would disrupt the State program of teacher education.

The estimates of additional costs per student averaged about $140, but the cost varied widely between students of the various institutions—from $75 at Mary Washington College to about $225 at Virginia Military Institute.

Other estimates of costs were $202 at the College of William and Mary, $168, State Teachers College at Radford; $165, University of Virginia; $150, Medical College of Virginia; $145, State Teachers College at Farmville; $140, Virginia State College for Negroes; $116, Virginia Polytechnic Institute; and $96, Madison College.

Would Boost Student Fees

The question of withdrawing State aid arose at the recent session of the General Assembly when a resolution was offered to declare it the sense of the Assembly that students in State-supported institutions should bear the cost of their instruction. The resolution was killed.

The survey showed that State aid ranged up to some 40 per cent of the income of those institutions from which replies were received.

Withdrawal of this support, it was stated, would necessitate an increase in student fees, described as already high.

'Wildcat' Strike Ends at Md. Plant

Baltimore, May 25 (AP).—All of the 168 shear crewmen involved in a strike at the Bethlehem Steel Co's. Sparrows Point plant went back to work today after a work stoppage that temporarily halted production of plate steel.

Company officials said that operations were normal as the 900 men thrown into enforced idleness by the strike which started Tuesday afternoon went back on the job.

The decision to return to work was made at a meeting of district 8, United Steel Workers of America (CIO) last night. Albert Atallah, union district director, declared the union did not authorize the stoppage. The dispute involved computation of pay for the crews and a request for wage increase.

Troops to Use Playspot In Chesterfield County

Richmond, Va., May 25 (AP).—The Swift Creek recreation area in Chesterfield County will be used as a training area for Camp Lee troops for the duration, Oliver G. Taylor, regional director for the national park service, announced yesterday.

Normal use of the area and occupancy of group camps at Swift Creek will not be affected by the arrangement, Taylor stated.

The park area has been closed to the public since 1942 because of insufficient funds for its operation.

Virginia Cuts 14 Million Off 10-Month Costs

Richmond, Va., May 25 (AP).—Virginia cut expenses approximately 14 million dollars during the first 10 months of the current fiscal year, H. C. Gilmer, State comptroller, reported. Expenditures for the period ended April 30, 1944, were $95,774,336.55 as compared with $109,750,221.58 for th first 10 months of the 1942-43 fiscal year. The State comptroller also reported that the loss in revenue for the period was only slightly above 10 million dollars.

The State comptroller placed the total revenues for the first 10 months of the current fiscal year at $112,159,181.28, as compared with $123,266,769.47 for last year, and pointed out that while the Commonwealth's income was reduced by $10,107,588.19, her expenditures were decreased by $13,975,884.93.

Liquor Revenues Slump

A shary decline was noted in revenues from the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board and this was "blamed" on the rigid rationing of liquor. The revenues from this source for the first 10 months of the year were placed at $26,6[illegible]710.45, while for the preceding period they were $36,934,491.78.

A reduction also was noted in revenues from the State payroll tax, funds from this source for the current period aggregating $8,550,430.20 as compared wtih $10,280,781.33 last year.

Beer tax collections also showed a decline for the 10-month period, $3,052,323.15 being collected this year as compared with $3,263,501.43 last year. However, nicreases were shown in beverage excise tax collections, and the new wine tax levy netted $208,196.14 during April, the first full month of its operation. This revenue, with that collected in March during the few days the levy was effective, boosted the total revenue from that source to $234,485.36 as of April 30, 1944.

Income Tax Yield Rises

Individual and corporation income tax colections both showed gains, the former increasing $1,556,137.57, as compared with the 10-month period last year, and the latter $679,547.01. Individual income tax collections for the period this year amounted to $5,735,887.84, as compared with $4,179,750.28 last year, while corporation income tax collections for the 10 months of this fiscal year were $3,249,539.11, as compared with $2,569,992.10 in 1842-43.

Highway expenditures showed a decline, the State comptroller's report showed, the department spending $15,483,977.53 this year, as compared with $19,490,816.14 in 1943.

A surplus of $49,825,615.82, from both general and special funds, was reported as of April 30 this year. The report showed a cash balance of $3,899,594.72 in the general fund, plus invested surplus of $21,754,800, and a cash balance of $19,554,251.10 in special funds, with an investment amounting to $4,617,000.

W. & M. Graduates To Hear Dabney

Williamsburg, Va., May 25 (AP).—Virginius Dabney, editor of the Richmond Times-Dispatch, will be commencement speaker, and the Rev. Vincent C. Franks, rector of St. Paul's Church of Richmond, will give the baccalaureate sermon at the commencement exercises of the College of William and Mary Sunday, June 4.

Dabney, who will receive the honorary degree of doctor of laws, will make the address at ceremonies attending the conferring of degrees, to be held in the college yard east of the Sir Christopher Wren building at 6 p. m.

Md. War Ballot Group Sets Up Machinery

Baltimore, May 25 (AP).—The State War Ballots Commission, which will handle the absentee soldier vote in next fall's general election, set its machinery in motion today by directing the State law department to draw up tentative regulations for guidance of election officials.

Governor O'Conor was named permanent chairman of the commission, while Secretary of State William J. McWilliams was elected secretary.

Police Chief's Slaying Case Goes to Jury

Luray, Va., May 25 (AP).—A Page County Circuit Court jury at 3:45 p. m. today took the case of Lawrence Good, 36, former Stanley chief of police, after testimony had been concluded in his trial on charges that he beat to death 19-year-old Marvin Jones, also of Stanley, last September.

Judge H. W. Bertram and attorneys devoted the entire morning to technicalities, including the preparation of instructions for the jury and of arguments for both sides, which followed the completion of evidence yesterday.

The former police chief took the stand in his own behalf yesterday afternoon, relating the circumstances leading up to the beating administered to the Stanley youth. He testified he hit Jones only three times with his nightstick, including once on the head, once about the head, and a third time about the eye. He said Jones had threatened him with a knife.

Good said that Jones had been ordered to leave town and had grown surly when asked to comply. He related that he placed the boy under arrest, put him in his automobile and transported him to the Stanley jail, where, he said, he was threatened by Jones.

In his opening speech, on Monday, Commonwealth's Attorney I. R. Dovel asked that a verdict of murder in the first degree be returned.

Potato Growers Prepare Protest To OPA on Prices

Norfolk, Va., May 25 (AP).—Producers representing 90 per cent of the potato acreage in Virginia and northeastern North Carolina yesterday prepared to take their case to Washington as warnings were sounded that OPA price ceilings going into effect June 1 will drive this area's potato crop into the black market.

More than 125 farmers at a mass meeting here sponsored by the Association of Virginia Potato and Vegetable Growers unanimously passed a resolution urging "that price ceilings on potatoes in Virginia and North Carolina be completely removed for the 1944 season." They authorized A. Preston Scott, association vice president, to name a committee to place the potato situation before the national OPA, the War Food Administration and the Senators and Representatives from the two States. Scott said he would select the committee immediately and that it would be expected to go to Washington early next week.

Potomac Synod To Meet May 30 At Hood College

Frederick, Md., May 25 (AP).—The Potomac Synod of the Evangelical and Reformed Church will meet at Hood College May 30-June 1, during which it will elect five clerical and five lay delegates to the week-long General Synod opening in York, Pa., June 21.

Alternates also will be named. Included in the business will be consideration of a proposed plan of union with the Congregational Christian Church.

Speakers for the meetings include Dr. H. I. Stahr, president of Hood College; the Rev. Dr. James E. Wagner of Lancaster, Pa., a member of the General Council; the Rev. H. W. A. Schaeffer of Baltimore, the Rev. Charles Enders of Washington, and the Rev. Paul V. Heim of Boonsboro.

The president of the Potomac Synod is Dr. J. L. Barnhart of Baltimore.

Veterans to Get 'Seeing-Eye' Dogs

By the Associated Press

Soldiers, sailors and Marines blinded in warfore will have "seeing eye" dogs as life companions and helpers, if they desire it.

President Roosevelt yesterday signed the act authorizing the Veterans' Administration to provide the dogs without cost, and sanctioning a first expenditure of one million dollars to this end.

A's Defeat Tigers, 2-0, on Harris' 3-Hitter

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Cleveland, May 25.—There appeared in The Washington Post of last Sunday a foul attack on every man or boy who ever played right field and we rise to defend the high honor and skill of that position from the jealous pen of Bob Considine, who also writes pieces for this paper.

POVICH

Considine, victim of a misspent youth and a warped idea that tennis was a better game than baseball, is a frustrated right fielder himself. When the kid teams on the old Terminal playground, near Union Station in Washington, used to choose up sides, the last man picked was Considine. They mercifully let him play right field to keep him out of harm's way.

Now, blithely ignoring his own horrible baseball career, Considine writes that I used to play right field because that is the least important position on a team and the place where I could do the least damage. Moreover, he smirks that our 9-year-old heir, scion of a right-fielding daddy, is now playing right field on the Falkland Tigers. That makes me bristle.

You bet my boy is playing right field. That's no disgrace. A fellow named Babe Ruth was a rightfielder most all of his life. There is another guy named Mel Ott who still is playing right field. Harry Hooper was a rightfielder, and so was Ted Williams. Goose Goslin played right field for the Nats for 10 years. We rightfielders were usually the best hitters on the ball club.

Anyway, its a mistaken idea that the best outfielder plays in center field. The toughest job in the outfield isn't center and it isn't left field, it's right field. Guys who can cover a lot of ground and who get the center field jobs are a dime a dozen. The smart outfielders play right field.

We quote an authority, Clyde Milan, coach of the Nats. He played center field for the Washington club for nigh onto 20 years and was one of the top men of the business. But now he says center field is the easiest position on the diamond. Listen:

"The center fielder has a breeze compared to the fellow in left and right, especially right. All the men in center ever sees are balls that are hit straight away. All he needs is some speed. But out there in right field, you get the balls that are slicing and hooking and twisting and spinning. You have to know how to play the bad hops. The worst kind of ball an outfielder has to play is the right-handed hitters's hit to right field.

"That ball is spinning and doing tricks. Its the same with the ball that the left-handed hitter pulls to right. The leftfielder's job is not so tough because there are fewer left-handed hitters to slice the ball. And the center fielder doesn't have to handle the balls hit down the lines, the kind that go for extra bases. I always want my best outfielder in right field."

So there.

When the ball players say of a guy, "He's a ball player," they mean that he's something extra special in the way of ball players, and thus we get back into the subject of Dutch Leonard who fits the term.

The Nats like to play behind Leonard because they know he gives them a hilt job all the time whether he wins or loses. Right now he wears the badge of his all-out determination to help win for the club in the form of a broken ankle that never completely healed. Leonard fractured his ankle two years ago by sliding into first base in an attempt to beat out a hit. You've seen pitchers slide into other bases, but rarely into first base. They aren't supposed to do that. But Leonard considers himself not only a pitcher but a ball player.

He helped win his own game in Cleveland yesterday with another rare play. The Nats were two runs behind and two were out, with men on second and third. They needed two runs badly. In his previous time at bat, Leonard had singled far against the right field fence on the fly. Now he was at bat swinging menacingly. The one thing the Indians never reckoned he would do was bunt. He couldn't hope to beat it out, with that bad leg of his. They played back. Leonard bunted. It was perfect. He couldn't have taken the ball in his hand and laid it down in a better spot along third base line. He squeezed the run home, beat the play to first and won his ball game by one run.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, May 25.—The leading (and just about the last) civilian heavyweight fighter comes back to Madison Square Garden tomorrow night. He is Joe Baksi, 210-pound Pole from Wilkes-Barre, Pa., who fights Seaman Lee Savold, an athletic instructor in the maritime service.

CONSIDINE

Baksi used to be a keeper for a swarm of midgets. That was some years ago, after he left home and hooked up with a carnival that was having trouble transporting its little people from town to town without losing them. But the midgets got in Baksi's hair afer a time. He went back to Wilkes-Barre, became a fighter and began picking on guys his own size.

Wilkes-Barre is the home town of Ham Fisher, creator of Joe Palooka. Baksi bears a remarkable resemblance to Palooka, but can't fight nearly as well as Fisher's stalwart doer of good deeds. But fight crowds these days are psychologically generous. They'll turn out for Baksi and Savold, even though they saw the same thing a few months ago in the same house, the fight going to Savold.

With Joe Louis, Billy Conn and Jimmy Bivins in uniform, Baksi has gained a certain fame by dint of his willing punching and the punctured eardrum which put him in 4-F. About the only other civilian heavyweights who know how to put up their dukes are Tami Mauriello, 4-F because of a crushed heel, and Lee Q. Murray, who says he is 4-F for "medical purposes." Savold gained permission from his commanding officer to fight tomorrow night after promising that he would not exploit his connection with the Maritime Service.

Beau Jack, the boxing game's main mealticket for almost a year, goes into the Army this week. He fought 13 main events at the Garden, won 11 of them, grossed $1,035,000. He himself earned about a quarter of a million dollars which, after the usual split-up, was invested for him by the brokers who first sponsored the bootblack and put him on the road to fame and wealth.

Like many another draftee, Beau Jack has his misgivings. But his are somewhat different. He has trouble reading and writing and fears he'll need both to get along as a GI. He has taken care of his family; the wife he married when he was 17 or 18 and the three children, including twin boys. They still live in the same section, near Augusta, Ga., where Beau Jack lived as a penniless child.

For a long time after becoming famous Beau Jack was given an allowance of $5 a week. But his operators let him keep a big share of his purse out of the last fight, and banked it for him. Now he has something like $15,000 to draw from, but still can't write a check for it and cash it. He can write his name okay. In fact, he can write "best wishes" too, for autographs. But his guardian, Bowman Milligan, must countersign all of his checks.

He'll probably do no fist-fighting while in the Army. If, by some chance, this is the end of his fighting career, let it be said that it was a good honest career. He became the biggest drawing card in boxing because Chick Wergeles, who booked him, never ducked a strong rival, and because Beau Jack himself gave each fight everything he had.

Speaking of fighting men, Greg Mangin, the former Davis Cup player, really turned out to be one. If there's a tougher job in the war than that of tail gunner of a Flying Fortress, we never saw it. Mangin chose the job. A tail gunner isn't even provided with a seat. He kneels over a kind of a bicycle saddle, his machine guns in his lap. He has to be small, strong. He does his fighting while breathing oxygen. If that equipment is shot away, he dies. He faces cannon-firing, machine-gunning enemy planes with nothing between him and the foe's fire except a pane of glass.

Sergt. Mangin has won the distinguished Flying Cross and the Air Medal with Clusters. He has been twice wounded, but kept fighting. The Sarge is a real man.

Freddie Mills KO's Al Delaney

London, May 25 (AP).—Freddie Mills, British and Empire light heavyweight boxing champion, knocked out Al Delaney, Canadian champion of the class, from Windsor, Ontario, in the fifth round of a scheduled 10-round bout in Albert Hall tonight.

Two right hooks settled the issue. The first sent Delaney, a Canadian soldier, down for the count of eight. The second, a few moments later, ended the battle.

Nat-Brown Game Here July 7 Designated for War Relief

A war relief benefit baseball game involving the Nats and St. Louis Browns under the lights at riffith Stadium on Friday night, July 7, yesterday was set by Clark riffith, Washington Club president.

The game will be cosponsored by "The Touchdown Club of Washington and the District unit of the American Legion, and will be a 100 per cent benefit for the war relief agencies.

CLARK GRIFFITH

Griffith met with Touchdown Club members and American Legion officials at a luncheon at The Touchdown Club yesterday, and indorsed the game. It will be a regularly scheduled American League game starting at 8:45 o'clock, and will b epreceded by special entertainment opening at 8 o'clock.

Griffith Sees Sellout

In approving this game, Griffith declared that he believes both the Nats and Browns will be in top stride for the July 7 contest, and will make this an occasion well worthwhile.

"I don't see how such a game, backed by appropriate ceremonies, can miss being a sellout," Griffith said last night. "We expect to begin the advance ticket sale at the ball park around June 19, and there will be no raise in admission prices. Admission to this game may be obtained through the outright purchase of tickets only."

Bob Simmons, president of the Touchdown Club, and Lester Steinem, spokesman for the Legion, announced that they wifl get together on a special program of entertainment. They will be ably assisted by Lieut Col. Joe Escude, whose outstanding job on last year's war relief game involving the Nats and Chicago White Sox helped attract a turnout of over 20,000.

Special Events Planned

Special events planned to supplement the game include: races involving pitchers, catchers, infielders and outfielders and also a grand finale in which two of the fastest players of the Washington club will run the two fastest of the St. Louis Browns.

There also will be a pegging contest in which catchers will test their accuracy by aiming throws at the mouth of a barrel at second base.

The committee named to assist in arrangements by President Bob Simmons finds Capt. E. J. Spaulding functioning as chairman. The committee otherwise is comprised of Ralph Pittman, Lieut. Col. Joe Escude, Jim Mager, Lester Steinem, Ernie Kennard, "Kip" Edwards, Howard Jacobs, George Garner, Vincent Filaherty, Frank (Buck) O'Neill, Clarence Nixon, Shirley Povich, Denman Thompson, John B. Keller, Roger Treat, Eddie Bates, Jack Tulloch, Arch McDonald, Mike Hunnicut, Tony Wakeman, Arthur J. (Dutch) Bergman, Russ Hodges, Jim Bibbons and Norman Reed.

Browns Edge Red Sox, 3-2, After Delay

St. Louis, May 25 (AP).—Bob Muncrief won his second game of the year today in a pitcher's duel with Tex Hughson as the St. Louis Browns measured the Boston Red Sox, 3 to 2. Each gave up seven hits although reliefer Mike Ryba held the Browns hitless for the last three innings.

Muncrief drove in the Browns' first run in the fourth inning and two more were added in the fifth on George McQuinn's first homer of the season and successive doubles by Vernon Stephens and Gene Moore.

Tommy McBride scored from first in Boston's half of the seventh when Bob Johnson doubled. Bobby Doer drove Johnson home with a single.

Jones-Powell Top Turner's Prelim Card

Anthony Jones, New Orleans middleweight, and Warren (Hercules) Powell, recent KO conqueror of Bobby Brown here, will meet in the eight-round semiwindup to the Tommy Mollis-Rocky Graziano bout in Griffith Stadium Monday night.

Powell, who gave a rousing exhibition in whipping Brown, looks like the best middleweight arrival of the year here, while Jones is one of the country's top-liners. having recently beaten the Cocoa Kid and fought Holman Williams to a split decision.

Closing of this encounter rounds out a strong supporting bill, comprising wind-up fighters. Another in this category is the New York featherweight, Freddie Russo, who meets Johnny Cockfield in a special sixer. Russo has the remarkable record of 29 successive victories. He recently whipped the former featherweight champion, Mik Belloise.

Bobby Gunther has been signed by Menendez to meet George Johnson, a highly-touted kid out of Boston, in another six-rounder Monday, and an opening four lists Otos Watson against Lou Phillips.

Promoter Turner and Matchmaker Menendez stated last night that they are convinced the welterweight and middleweight divisions will dominate the summer market locally. In that connection, they have offered a contract to the Jones-Powell winner to meet any one of three outstanding middleweights—Lloyd Marshall, Jake La Motta and Vic Dellicurti—here next month or in July.

A gallery of 200 persons greeted Mollis yesterday when the popular Baltimore veteran opened local drills. He sparred four fast rounds, two with Young Tommy Sloan and two with Howard Miller, and also did an extensive turn at shadow boxing and on the speed and heavy bags.

COLD SILENCES BAT—Thurman Tucker, Chicago White Sox outfielder and at present the leading batter in the American League, was hospitalized yesterday in the Windy City with a heavy cold. His wife, Ruby, is shown with him. Manager Jimmy Dykes says Tucker will be out of the line-up for several days.

Ace Drives In Winning Run in 7th

Detroit, May 25 (AP).—The Detroit Tigers suffered their eleventh defeat in 12 games at Briggs Stadium when Luman Harris pitched a three-hitter and drove in the winning run today to give the Philadelphia Athletics a 2 to 0 decision.

Harris, who carried a 13-game losing streak into the 1944 season and then dropped his first strat, didn't permit a Tiger to reach third base while gaining his fourth victory and second shoutout. Meanwhile, the A's gathered 10 hits off Johny Gorsica, who was charged with his thrid defeat.

The game was scoreless until the seventh, when Irvin Hall doubled, advanced on Edgar Busch's sacrifice and scored on Harris' line single to left. In the eighth Ford Garrison singled for his third hit, moved up on Frank Hayes' sacrifice and scored on Dick Siebert's double.

Harris issued two passes in the first inning, but after Jimmy Outlaw opened the second with a single Harris retired 18 batsmen in order. Chuck Hostetler and Paul Richards singled to open the eighth, but Harris quickly smothered the rally.

First, Pinch Hitter Charley Metro popped u pa bunt and then Pinch Runner Paul Trout was out for interference on Busch on Roger Cramer's roller. Joe Hoover popped for the third out.

By taking a 3-to-0 series edge the A's tightened their grip on a first-division berth.

Eastern, Wilson Pace Interhigh Track Trials

Wilson and Eastern High Schools walked away with honors in the trials of the forty-seventh annual interhigh track and field meet yesterday at Central Stadium with the Ramblers placing 11 men in the finals which are slated for 3:45 p. m. today at Central, and the Tigers, 10.

Phil Ewing, star Wilson sprinter, ran his usual brilliant race while winning the 100 and 220-yard dashes. Ewing is favored to break the local scholastic 100-yard-dash record today, competing with Bill Lann of Tech, Marvin Trivette of Eastern and Phil Sayers of Eastern.

Eastern's Ramblers surprised in the field events, placing 11 boys in the finals. John Colvin of Wilson, took first place in the pole vault and broad jump. The Wilson star has been setting the schoolboy pace with his mighty leaps and is favored to break the vault record of 11-feet 6linches.

The Green Tigers remain favorites to repeat last year's feat. Tech, Eastern and Roosevelt have displayed the most serious threats thus far.

The qualifiers are:

100-YARD DASH—Ewing (Wilson), Trivette (Eastern), Sayers (Eastern), Lann (Tech), Marvin (Wilson).

200-YARD DASH—Ewing (Wilson), Trivette (Eastern), Schreve (Tech), Sayers (Eestern), Garner (Tech).

440-YARD DASH — Bauman (Coolidge), Gregory (Wilson), Beck (Wilson), Drew (Coolidge), Schreve (Tech), Spangenberg (Wilson), Bottler (Wilson), Laughton (Tech).

220 LOW HURDLES—Leeth (Western), Solomon (Tech), Salvanelli (Roosevelt), Saunders (Wilson), Keith (Wilson).

Lucas Predicts Postwar Play in Eastern Shore

Cambridge, Md., May 25 (AP).—Fred Lucas manager of the old Cambridge Cardinals of the now-suspended Eastern Shore Baseball League, predicts that the six-city Maryland-Delaware class D circuit will be reorganized as soon as the war ends.

Lucas stated that local interest in the loop, which suspended in 1942, had neither waned nor was it dormant.

Such stars as Jimmy Foxx, Frank (Home Run) Baker, Jake Flowers, Buck Herzog, Red Ruffing and George Selkirk ,once played in the Shore League.

Short distances between towns on the Eastern Shore give the league an advantage of comparative low operating costs over other circuits, Lucas pointed out, and predicted that this would be of major importance in keeping the league in baseball.

Durham, N. C., May 25 (AP).—Head Coach Eddie Cameron announced today that his Duke University Blue Devils would meet the University of Pennsylvania gridders at Franklin Field on September 30.

Cameron did not announce any other games on the fall schedule but he indicated it would probably provide a stiff test for his Southern Conference champions

Track Meet Booked

Ithaca, N. Y., May 25 (AP).—Cornell and Princeton will hold an "English System" dual track meet here Saturday. Instead of the usual big teams, each school is limited to two entries in each of 12 events and only first places will count. In event of a 6-6 tie, second places will determine the winner.

Braves Blank Bucs, 1-0, as Javery Stars

Boston, May 25 (AP).—Alva Javery hurled a three-hit shutout to gain his first victory of the season today, as the Boston Braves nosed out the Pittsburgh Pirates, 1-0.

Nick Strincevich opposed Javery, and matched the Braves' right-hander in every inning but the first when a pair of walks to Connie Ryan and Max Macon, followed by Butch Nieman's single, allowed Ryan to score the only run of the game. It was the first loss for Strincevich against four victories.

The Pirates threatened in only two innings. Vince DiMaggio opened the third with a single, raced to third on naother single by Al Lopez, but was cut down at the plate, when he attempted to score on a squeeze bunt by Strincevich, Javery to Catcher Clyde Kluttz. Javery walked the next batter to fill the sacks, but Pete Coscarart hit a fast double play to end the inning.

A great stop by Shortstop Billy Wietelmann of Strincevich's grounder in the fifth inning, with two on, prevented the Pirates from tieing the score.

Manager Frankie Frisch was ordered off the field by Umpire Ralph Pinelli in the sixth inning, for protesting too vehemently on a called strick against Coscarart.

It was Javery's ninth start this season, which he's lost six.

Coaches Agree Out-of-Bounds Kick Is Taboo

Chicago, May 25 (AP).—Western conference football coaches today reached a gentlemen's agreement to abolish deliberate out-of-bounds kickoffs while the basketball coaches sought an agreement to make their games next season more gentlemanly.

One long-time Midwest basketball official accused several Big Ten cage coaches of teaching illegal body blocks and said that "higher ups" would urge such tactics be eliminated. It was reported that some coaches would not agree to schedule games with a certain conference school because of that school's rough type of play on the courts last season.

"Basketball as now played in the conference is nothing more than semifootball," said the official, who dequested to remain anonymous.

"The teaching of body blocks has been going on so long that Big Ten players who later have become high school coaches are showing their prep boys how to use them. The sport is becoming stained and hard to control, and I have it no good authority that suggestions have been passed down Big Ten coaches to clean up the sport or else."

Basketball coaches, given permission to draw up their own schedules rather than have the athletic directors do it as in the past, will atempt to map the 1945 conference program tomorrow, although still enmeshed in fraternal strife. Ohio State and Wisconsin were said to be unwilling to play Purdue, charging the Boilermakers with unnecessary roughness last season.

By agreieng to eliminate the intentional out-of-bounds kickoff in football this fall, the Big Ten coaches indicated their attitude on this rule for the national meting of the trustees and officers of the National Coaches' Association, which convenes in New York Sunday.

Much dissatisfaction was shown last year when teams deliberately kicked off out of bounds, giving the receiving team possessio of the ball on its own 355-yard line rather tha nrisk a long runback of the kick.

Ike Williams' Pilot Refuses to Sell Contract

Philadelphia, May 25 (AP).—Connie McCarthy, manager of Ike Williams, Trenton, N. J., lightweight, said today he had turned down an offer of $25,000 for the boxer's contract made by Olsen and Johnson, stage and screen comedians.

Williams meets Sammy Angott in a 10-round bout at Shibe Park here on June 6.

Interstate Clubs Plan Prayers on D-Day

Baltimore, Md., May 24 (AP).—If news of the invasion of Europe comes while a baseball game is in progress between Interstate League teams, all persons in the park will stand for three minutes of silent prayer, Arthur Ehrlers, president of the league, said today.

At the conclusion of the prayer period, he said, the National anthem will be played and the game will be resumed.

Winchester Softball Loop Organized

Winchester, Va., May 25.—The Winchester Recreation Department Softball League was organized last night with four teams expected to open June 5.

P. H. Gee was elected president, Ryland Conner, secretary, and Norman Hampton, treasurer of the organization.

Another meeting was called for next Monday when the schedule will be adopted and player lists arranged.

Chisox's Tucker Taken to Hospital

Chicago, May 25 (AP).—Thurman Tucker, Chicago White Sox centerfielder who is leading the American League batting race with a .395 mark, was taken to a hospital last night suffering a heavy cold.

Manager Jimmie Dykes said Tucker was hospitalized as a precautionary measure and that it was unlikely that his star hitter would be available for the remainder of the White Sox series with the New York Yankees.

Zurita-Pep Battle May Be Nontitle Affair

Los Angeles, Maq 25 (AP).—Boxer Juan Zurita's manager, George Parnassus, said today that it had not been decided whether Zurita's NBA lightweight crown will be at stake in a bout with Willie Pep of Hartford, Conn., at New York on June 16. Parnassus announced in Mexico City Tuesday that the fight had been arranged.

The manager said Zurita would scale 132 pounds for the clash.

Pafko Called National's Top Rookie

New York, May 25 (AP).—Andy Pafko is the best looking young ball player Billy Southworth has seen in the National League this year and that's a pretty fair recommendation coming from the skipper of the 1942-43 pennant winners.

After looking over new talent that dots every senior circuit roster, the St. Louis Cardinals manager today rated the Chicago rookie outfielder, wh oled the Pacific Coast League hitters while with Los Angeles in 1943, as the best of the crop. Pafko was hitting .306 through games of May 24.

Southworth is also high on his second baseman, Emil Verban, who is making good as a replacement for Lou Klein, lost to the service.

"You watch Verban out there and you'll see some fancy fielding," said the Card pilot. "He may not have as much power as Klein but he is a better fielder."

Southworth's present starting pitcher alignment is Max Lanier, Mort Cooper, Al Jurisich, Ted Wilks and George Munger. Wilks, a strong armed fellow, has been promoted from the relief ranks and Harry Gumbert and Harry Brecheen have been relegated to bull pen duty.

"That kid Jurisich has plenty on the ball," Southworth raved. "A strep throat knocked him down right after he shutout Cincinnati and he hasn't got all his strength back yet but he's ready to go."

Max Lanier's six straight victories can be credited to more poise, according to Billy the Kid who plans to pitch him every fifth day regardless of turn.

"Four days rest are just what he needs," the skipper ruled. "I tried him with less and with more but it didn't work. You'll see him out there every fifth day, hot or cold."

The hit and run has replaced the "devil may care" base running of the 1942 world champions because the Red Birds lack the blinding speed and instinctive leadership of men like Terry Moor and Enos Slaughter. They didn't have it last year, a fact that amazed many in the World Series. They're not snow but they can't scoot like that '42 outfit. Of course there's still Pepper Martin and Southworth is authority for the statement that the "Old Wild Hoss" hasn't a step on his speed since the early 1930s.

"Pep doesn't like to play those night games, says he can't see the ball," the skipper explained. "I am not going to usé him under the lights unless we have a real emergency. He has been playing against lefthanded pitching and doing fine. We'll be using him more as we go along and begin to lose fellows like Stan Musial and Danny Litwhiler."

Root Rides Four Winners at Charles Town

Friedman's Entry, $3.20, Wins Feature

By Walter Haight
Post Staff Writer

Charles Town, W. Va., May 25.—Jockey Buddy Root broke out in another rash of winners today and added four successes to his long string at this meeting. The Kansas City saddle master, already the leading rider here by a wide margin, rode Wayne Kendrick's Honeymaid to victory in the fourth race, came back in the fifth to pilot Mrs. A. Fowble's Big Steel and then was the hero of two close photo finishes in the seventh and eighth races, with Bonnie Ina, owned by John Bosley, jr. and R. C. Watts' Mistake.

Root had to be satisfied with fourth money, however, in the featured sixth event. J. L. Friedman's Mae Case, a $3.20 favorite, was the winner by a length and a half, finishing in front of a photo for second in which the camera voted for Alan T. Clarke's Walter Haight over Pearson and Shank's Discretion. Mae Case was clocked in 1.19 3-5 only a second over the track record.

Discretion and Lost and Found battled for the early pace honors while Mae Case was reserved in third position. Walter Haight, in the meanwhile, had run into tight quarters and was shuffled back to last position. Mae Case finally shook off Discretion to take command and was kept to a drive as Walter Haight came along to take the place money.

The daily double paid $31.20 on the "3 and 6" combination. A. H. Taylor's Bell Soma led all the way to win the first event under the handling of Jockey Wodie Kirk. The second race went to Alan T. Clarke's Destination with Jockey Sammy Palumbo in the saddle. Bell Soma paid an individual mutuel of $12.80 and Destination was a $3.60 favorite.

BETWEEN RACES — Racing Secretary Fred Burton is trying to fill a $1000 condition race for Saturday. Now that Don Meade and Bobby Merritt have been reinstated, how about Matthew Quinn, the boy who was given "life" at Marlboro last year? . . . Quinn won't have big shots batting for him but he deserves a break . . . In my mind there was reasonable doubt as to his guilt. I don't know the boy and I don't know if he wants to ride, but after this Meade business, racing should go knock its collective heads against a well . . . Quinn was suspected once . . . Meade was convicted twice and not for the same offense . . . Owner-Trainer Stanley Greene, jr., has decided to stay here instead of going to Wheeling . . . Jockey Ralph Eccard, who will ride for C. V. Whitney at Delaware Park, was a visitor . . . Former Jockey Eddie Jones, a Charles Town boy, is furloughing here from Fort Sill, Okla.

7000 Youths Ask For Duty With Merchant Marine

More than 7000 youths between the ages of 16 and 17½ years old have applied for duty with the Merchant Marines in 40 large cities, the War Shipping Administration said yesterday.

Officials called this the largest turnout since the war began and exceeded all previous enrollment application totals for a similar period. Many applicants appeared with their parents, whose consent is required. Approximately 600 already have been ordered to report to training stations.

USMS enrolling officers indicated great care was being exercised in making selections with first consideration given to those most fit for duty or who possess special aptitude.

Virginia Tech Nine Tops Wilson Hospital

Staunton, Va., May 25 (A).—Virginia Tech defeated Woodrow Wilson General Army Hospital, 9-6, in a hard-fought game here yesterday. The Tech batters collected 16 hits off Manear and Calta, while the Medics garnered 10 off Faison, Gobbler hurler.

HOPE RIDINGS MILLER

Book Title Might Change If Autographing Persists; Oddments That Interest

PERSONS AND PLACES: Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hopkins, now in White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., for an indefinite stay, are occupying one of the cottages in Carolina rd. on the grounds of what used to be the famous Greenbrier Hotel. Almost any time of the day, however, one or both of them can be found looking over the antiques in Mrs. Bolger's shop in the village. . . . It'll soon be the ghost "walks" instead of "talks" if Charles Michelson's many friends don't stop imposing on his good nature for autographs of his best-selling book on Democratic politics and politicos. . . . Lieut. Philip Evans, USN, now home on brief leave to visit his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joshua Evans jr., is one of the few officers wearing an "A" on their pre-Pearl Harbor ribbons. It signifies "engaging the enemy before Pearl Harbor." Lieutenant Evans' pretty younger sister, Mariana, will be home from Simmons College soon with her bachelor's degree. . . . According to their mother, the former Ethel duPont, the children of Comdr. Franklin Delano Roosevelt, jr., speak only French. "Their diction, then, will be much better when they're taught English."

ODDMENTS OF INTEREST: Funny, how long you can know people in Washington . . . and only get around to finding out how interesting they are after quite a long while. Take, for example, Minister Seni Pramoj of Thailand (used to be called Siam), with whom I happened to have quite a long talk at Mrs. Churchill Stoneborough's party the other afternoon. Every minute I chatted with him that day—or, rather, listened to him—I wished for a handy stenographer who might take down every word he said.

As is the usual thing in Washington today, talk soon turned on the war and presently the dapper envoy began discussing "man's inhumanity to man" in a way I wanted to remember. "It's such a peculiar thing," he began, "how and why men fight each other when each depends on the other for his very survival.

"In our country, we have a saying," he went on, dropping into words and accents I could not understand. And then he continued. "That all means simply this: 'The boat has the river . . . the tiger, the jungle . . . but man has only man on which to depend.'"

THE MINISTER and his engaging little wife had arrived early at the party, and so were in a company that was predominantly feminine. The envoy and the guest of honor, Harry Bull of New York, and one or two others were the only men in the crowd. Wives had arrived ahead of their husbands; more and more women were coming in all the time. The hostess began to be a little anxious as to whether most of the males she had invited might be going elsewhere. (Eventually, her fears proved to be unfounded. Before the closing hour, there were two men for every woman present.)

Anyway, getting back to the Minister of Thailand—he was apparently unconcerned as to whether there were many other men on hand at the time he arrived. "I like women," he said with a smile. "I think it's too bad we're prone to think of the world as 'man's world.' Men," he added significantly, "have made quite a botch of running the world thus far. I'm all for letting the women have a chance at it."

AT THE SAME PARTY, by the way, the Navy's "Padre of the Pacific," Father F. P. Behring, arrived during the latter half . . . and took over a sizable share of the spotlight.

He came in with Justice Frank Murphy and Philippine Vice President Osmena, and the trio had a throng around them from the minute they got in the door. Back from 22 months in the Pacific battle theater, Father Gehring, who has the rank of lieutenant commander, smiled, answered questions, speculated on the end of the war, and proved generally that a priest has as much place at a wartime Washington party as anybody else.

"I love people . . . and the more the better," he beamed. Only his repeated announcement that he didn't expect to be here long (in fact, he left a few hours later for a visit to his mother in Brooklyn) headed off a number of Capital party invitations aimed in his direction.

PRIME MINISTER Churchill's speech early Wednesday could not have been more timely—so far as a certain Washington party late that afternoon was concerned.

It was a 6-to-8 o'clock reception at the Spanish Embassy . . . one of the first large fetes at which Ambassador Juan Cardenas and his attractive wife have entertained in a long, long time. Presumably the whole thing was arranged so that friends might have a chance to see the embassy gardens, where the roses are in full bloom . . . but I must say the floral display, beautiful as it was, created far less comment than the British Prime Minister's speech.

Over and over again, I heard guests talking about his complimentary remarks about Spain and his emphasis on the Allied attitude toward it.

"I am here to speak kindly words about Spain," he said in his address to the House of Commons. "Let me add this hope, that she will be a strong influence for peace in the Mediterranean after the war."

There was much more in the same vein . . . all of which seemed to strengthen the friendly feeling many Washingtonians have had toward Spain in general, and members of the Spanish Embassy here in particular, through a long and trying period.

Anyway, notables by the dozens turned out for that party, which on all accounts was one of the most successful of the season.

"I didn't know whether I should come, or not," said a dowager who hasn't missed any party to which she has been invited in 10 years. "Spain's position has been so doubtful," she chattered on, in an unknowing way. "But then," she added, surveying the throng that included a record number of Capital officials and high-ranking Army and Navy notables, "I see it was all right . . . after all."

It certainly was.

Children Set Thrift Pace According to Mrs. LeRoy

By Genevieve Reynolds

When it comes to thrift, the present-day generation of youngsters excel their parents. Truth is—they save more proportionately than the older people. This is the observation of tall, aristocratic-looking Mrs. Howard S. LeRoy, new chairman of the Education Division, D. C. War Finance Committee for the Fifth War Loan Drive, which gets underway June 12.

"Just give children a little recognition and encouragement to buy war bonds and they will make an all-out effort to do so," she declares. "They love citation and certificates. Recognition spurs them on."

All over town, school-agers are proudly exhibiting letters from men at the fighting front. It happens that if a child buys a certain number of war bonds either for himself or through an organization, his name or that of the group goes on some part of an airplane, gun or tank. Often the fighting men take time to write the kids a letter, according to Mrs. LeRoy.

She Instructs Trainees

Immediate goal of the education division is to persuade schoolchildren to invest their vacation earnings in War Bonds. Not only does it help the Government but gives them a feeling of being a real part of the war effort. Also, it stresses the idea of children having something for themselves in later years. Actually, it could mean the difference between a college or no college degree. At least that's the way Mrs. Le Roy sees it.

For the past two years this comely matron has devoted 16 to 20 hours a week to war work. Successively she has been chairman of booths, organization and vice chairman of the Women's Division of the District of Columbia War Finance Committee. Also, she puts in extra hours instructing volunteer trainees. Come June she will make a number of talks before graduating classes.

As a member of the board of trustees of Barney Neighborhood House and chairman of the Federation of Settlements for the past four years, Mrs. Le Roy has done much to coordinate the work of Washington's eight settlement houses. Also she's an active member of the Recreation Division of the Council of Social Agencies.

Gives Up Golf, Bridge

Besides working with the committee, she has tied more than 1000 bows for war stamp corsages in the past few days. In fact, all her time goes into war activities. A golf and bridge enthusiast, she has given up both for the duration.

For the past 24 years Mrs. Le Roy, a native of Philadelphia, has called Washington "home." She has traveled extensively, taken an active interest in civic and social affairs, loves people. With Mr. Le Roy who, by the way, is treasurer general of the Inter-American Bar Association and president-elect of the D. C. Rotary Club, she has made numerous trips abroad and has entertained international figures during their visits to the Nation's Capital.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Having Been Twice Victimized By Her Emotions In Nine Years, Woman of 39 Now Feels Morally Smirched Beyond Redemption; She Fears Collapse

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am 39, though am judged to be in my early thirties. I am considered attractive and make friends easily, in spite of being rather shy and timid. About nine years ago, while vacationing on a Southern cruise, I met a man to whom I was strongly attracted. He was suave and worldly, and had been married and divorced. He led me to believe our friendship might culminate in love and marriage and took advantage of me one night.

Strange to say, even at 30, I was childishly innocent and trusting. That episode was extremely unfortunate; a great shock to my nervous system; and I had no affection or respect for the man afterward. No doubt I was ripe for romance at the time; but still,—how could I have abandoned all my ideals in one rash moment? It brought me to the verge of a nervous breakdown, from which I was almost a year in recovering. I gradually made new friends and came close to marrying several times; but this dark memory constantly lurks in my mind.

Doesn't Know Why She Loses Her Head

NOW I am holding a very responsible position with a professional firm; and have a professional background myself. Some months ago, I was introduced to a very fine man at a church function. We had heard of each other before we met, and became friends almost instantly. Frankly, I can't remember ever feeling so much joy as when I met him. He is intelligent and good looking; we are the same age, and we found many viewpoints in common. He asked to see me the following evening; and we went to the theater. When we came out, it was raining and he suggested we stop in his apartment close by for a snack.

Inasmuch as I had previously met his parents, he assured me it would be perfectly proper; and I was certain he had no ulterior motive. There was no one at home, so we fixed sandwiches and drinks. We played the radio, danced, talked and were thoroughly enjoying each other's company. We had too many drinks; he made love to me and I did not resist his advances. I lost my head completely; I don't know why. Needless to say, I became very depressed after this incident.

Has She Forfeited Right to Be Loved?

I SAW him once more after that, but he was interested only in continuing an intimate relationship. There was no expression of love on his part; and I realize he probably got the impression I was completely promiscuous. Since then, I have been mentally ill. I cannot understand how I,—who have always been so reserved and respectfully treated by men,—could have made the same mistake twice. The first incident may not have been my fault entirely; but the second was inexcusable. I am finding it difficult to keep from going to pieces.

I have always wanted marriage, children and a home; and now that prospect seems lost. What right have I to receive love and respect from any man? Yet if I cannot be married and raise a family, I'd rather not go on living, as I was never intended for any other purpose. What can one do in my situation? Should I make an effort to explain myself to the second man? I would do anything to change his opinion of me and retain his friendship. Or am I a complete failure? G. Z.

Temperament at War With Spinster Status

DEAR G. Z.: The reason you made the same mistake twice is because (1) you are endowed by nature with a temperament that has great need to love and be loved; and because (2) due to inscrutable factors in your life history, you have been denied opportunity to legitimately, fulfill that need in happy marriage. Your adult life has been as barren of love as a desert is barren of restful beauty and cool refreshment; and for 20 years you have been, with secret desperation, as frantically seeking the sanctuary of love as a traveler lost in the desert frantically seeks the salvation of an oasis. And just as the lost desert traveler sometimes gives chase to a mirage, or is finally driven by the tyranny of his thirst to drink from a poison spring,—so have you been thwarted and betrayed in your lonely quest for love.

In twice mistaking human swine for honorable men, you have by no means established yourself as "a complete failure" in life. One may suffer innumerable defeats without registering failure. No one is a failure until he "gives up," in slack despair. You might say of yourself, in the words of the poet Sara Teasdale: "I have not come the way in vain, for I have good of all my pain. My spirit's quiet house shall be built of naked stones I trod, on roads where I lost sight of God."

Faith Opens Way To Regeneration

FOR YOUR part in the two mistakes, you have paid dearly in anguished repentance; and now it behooves you,—in the words of St. Paul,—"that ye put away your former manner of life that waxeth corrupt, and be ye renewed in the spirit of your mind." That is to say, take a new grip on life, beginning now, this minute, secure in the knowledge that the truly repented sin is completely forgiven you; and that your chances of leading a good life henceforth, as the blamelessly loving wife of some good man, are completely restored to you, if by positive faith you commit yourself to the regenerative power of God,—Who is Love. And Whose sustaining presence Paul describes thus: "One God and Father of all, who is above all and through all and in us all."

Inasmuch as "the second man" is no pillar of light, to judge by his sexual-opportunist behavior, don't turn to him as a confessor. Rather, drop him from mind, along with the corrupt incident in which he figured. However, you should have some soul-searching talks with a qualified consultant,—preferably someone who comprehends the spiritual aspects of your confused suffering and past blunders. And it is possible the Institute of Applied Religion and Psychology, which has been doing fine work in personality-rehabilitation for some years here, under the leadership of Dr. J. Lowery Fendrich, could afford you such a counsellor. Telephone FRanklin 3763, between the hours of 10 a. m. and 5 p. m., for an appointment. M. H.

Dr. Sims Heads Alexandria TB Group Again

The Alexandria Tuberculosis Association yesterday prepared to begin a new fiscal year under a new slate of officers elected Wednesday evening at the annual meeting in Carter Holl, headquarters of the Alexandria Hospital's School of Nursing.

Dr. John A. Sims of Belle Haven, who has led the association's efforts to establish a 50-bed $176,000 tuberculossi sanitarium for northern Virginia in cooperation with Arlington and Fairfax County health officials, was reelected president. Other officers elected are:

Other Officers Named

Robert G. Whitton, administrator of the Alexandria Hospital, first vice president, succeding Mrs. William Burch; Michael H. Burchell, second vice presidentfi succeding Dr. H. A. Latane; Robert M. Reese, reelected treasurer, and Mrs. Doris Tompkins, reelected executive secretary.

Newly elected directors, to serve until 1945, are Mrs. Joseph Callaway, jr., and Charles D. Pulman. A third director will be named to represent the Catholic Church by Very Rev. Edward L. Stephens, LL. B., V. F., pastor of St. Mary's Catholic Church, a sasucce ssor to the Rev. Phillip Kirrane who has been transferred to Norfolk.

Directors who will continue to serve until 1945 are: Alexandria health officer, Dr. William Arkell Browne, Irving Diener, the Rev. Fred V. Poag, Howard Richardson, Mrs. Charles Slagle and Whitton.

Directors Until 1946

Newly elected directors to serve until 1946 are Frederick L. Flynn and Thomas C. Graham, president of the Alexandria Council of Social Agencies. Directors who will continue to serve until 1946 are Miss Mary Carne, Mrs. Burch, Jones Cox, Mrs. Everett A. Hellmuth, Mrs. Clarence C. Leadbeater, Dr. J. Cameron McCluer and Dr. Sims.

Newly elected directors to serve until '947 are: Dr. George Lemeshewsky, Miss Margaret Nowell, Miss Utha Gray Smith, and Clarence J. Hite. Reelected directors in the gipup are: State Senator Andrew W. Clarke, Dr. James A. Gooch, Dr. Latane, Reese and Mrs. William E. Warne.

Annual reports were made by the association's officers and by Miss Nancy Guthrie, president of the Alexandria school students' junior board, and by Mary C. Brown, health chairman of the Negro Tuberculosis Auxiliary.

Citizens Adopt Postwar Plans InMontgomery

Recommendations for nine postwar projects in Montgomery County were approved by the Woodside Park Civic Association at its meeting held Wednesday night.

They were made at the request of Clarence Akers, president of the Montgomery County Civic Federation, which will review and study the proposals for its recommendation to county authorities.

Following are the proposed projects: Widening of the B. & O. underpass, Silver Spring; extension of 16th st. northward to the intersection of Georgia ave.; widening of Georgia ave., from Fidler lane to Seminary road for a dual highway; increased school facilities and teachers to avoid overcrowding and improve effectiveness of instruction; provisions for a gymnasium and workshops at Montgomery Hills Junior High School; establishment of a centrally located public library; promotion of research centers and scientific laboratories rather than industrial plants; additional flowering trees and shrubs in public parks, and encourage the return to Washington of Federal agencies that were temporarily moved away.

Evarts Judson Wagg, reelected president, said copies of the recommendations will be sent to the Allied Civic Groups of Silver Spring.

Other officers elected include Charles W. Hopkins, vice president; Margaret A. Randall, secretary, and Frank Harris, treasurer.

Delegates named to the Civic Federation are Allen H. Gardner, Harold P. Morris and Charles A. Weigel; alternates, Sanford H. Brown, Eugene M. Thore and Ryland M. Warren.

Arlington Safe-Driving Contest Won by Hudson Supply Co.

Arlington, Fairfax Bureau of The Post. Arlington, Va. Tel. CH. 3239.

The Hudson Supply and Equipment Company of Arlington, with a record of 242,965 miles driven with no accidents, won the sixth annual large fleet operators' safe driving contest sponsored by the Arlington Safety Council, it was announced yesterday by William K. MacMahon, contest chairman.

The Virginia Public Service Co., placed second with no accidents in 112,741 miles, the report said, while four other contestants completed the competition in April with no accidents for the month. They were the Arlington Water Department, the Hajoca Corporation, the County Engineering Department and Hires-Turner Glass Co.

The 18 companies, represented by 264 vehicles, traveled 3,007,125 miles and 35 accidents during the entire contest. Accidents per 100,000 miles in the contest just finished were 1.65, compared with 1.64 last year and 2.16 in the fourth contest.

The other 12 contestants were Marcey Brothers, Inc., C. & P. Telephone Co., Arlington County Highway Dept., Noland Comapny, Arlington County Refuse Dept., Murphy & Ames, Inc., J. W. Barton, Rosslyn Gas Co., Dickey Company, Arlington County Sewer Dept., Arlington Asphalt Co., and the American Oil Co.

The annual State Safety Conference, in Roanoke, Va., is being attended by Clifton G. Stoneburner, Arlington Safety Council director, William K. MacMahon, council member, and George Kornman, Rosslyn Gas Co. safety engineer.

Red Cross Celebrates

Chartered May 25, 1917, with 497 members, Arlington County Red Cross Chapter, with a membership of 13,000, celebrated its twenty-seventh birthday on Thursday.

In the last war the Arlington Chapter had three corps: the refreshment corps, similar to the canteen corps of today; Gray Ladies, camp and hospital council service, and home service; and production corps. Also, in 1917, there was home service, which included disaster relief, Junior Red Cross, and first aid instruction.

Now, in 1944, the Arlington County Red Cross has six Volunteer Special Service Corps: Staff assistance, nurses aide, canteen, production, motor and camp and hospital council service. In addition, the chapter has a blood donor service home service, Junior Red Cross, public information service and an educational program, including first aid and accident prevention, home nursing an dnutrition.

Financially, the Arligton Chapter has grown from a shoestring budget and an organization which was without permanent headquarters, to a "big business" with a $50,000 annual budget, always outgrown office space, and a staff of four full-time employes and two part-time workers, along with 2500 active volunteers.

Spring Concert Tonight

The Women's Choral Society of Arlington, Malton Boyce directing, will give a spring concert at the Lyon Park Community House, No. Fillmore st. and Pershing dr., tonight at 8:30 o'clock.

The Choral Society was sponsored by the Creative Arts Club of Arlington in the spring of 1943, with plans formulated by the music group. The group now has a membership of 22 and meets for practice the third Tuesday of each month in the USO Recreation Center, 3150 Wilson blvd. Auditions for new members are held from 7:30 to 8 p. m. regular rehearsal nights. Women interested in joining should call Mrs. Charles I. Stanton, president, CHestnut 0619, or Mrs. Clarence Croft, secretary, CHestnut 7193, for further information.

Sodality Breakfast

The Blessed Virgin Sodality of St. Thomas More Catholic Church will hold its first annual communion breakfast Sunday, May 28, in the Parish Hall, immediately following the 8:30 a. m. mass. The Rev. Gilbert Hartke, O. P., will be guest speaker.

Reservations must be made not later than Friday morning, May 26. Miss Lorese Luitich is chairman of the breakfast committee.

Employe Held In $300 Theft At Alexandria

Trial of an Alexandria ambulance driver charged with the theft of $300 from his employer at 12:15 a. m. yesterday was ordered continued until June 1 by Judge Harry F. Kennedy following a hearing at 9:30 a. m. in Alexandria Civil and Police Court.

The driver, Relphos Leroy Snyder, 20, was arrested at 3:15 a. m. Thursday at a hotel on 13th st. and New York ave. nw., in Washington where he had registered in his own name only a few hours before.

Alexandria police learned he had been seen going to Washington in a taxicab shortly after the theft was reported by L. P. Sutton, manager of the Doctors Ambulance Service, who said $300 had been taken from his residence at 113 South Alfred st. Detective Lieut. Russell Hawes of the Alexandria Police Department said $286 of the money had been recovered.

Snyder was returned to Alexandria by Lieut. L. E. Padgett and Corpl. F. H. Johnson of the Alexandria department. Police said a clue in tracing Snyder's movements was provided by two suitcases he was carrying.

Both were liberally plastered with stickers one of which bore a label with the word "escape" which was noticed by the taxi driver and the hotel clerk.

Paper Salvage Drive

Mrs. Robert A. Osborn, leader for the Chesterbrook 4-H Club, announces that her group will start their final paper salvage drive at 9 a. m. tomorrow with a picnic luncheon at noon. If the collections are not completed Saturday the work will be continued Monday morning. Residents of the Chestrebrook area are urged to tie their papers and magazines in neat bundles and put them where they can be collected by the boys. Money received from the sale is used to assist members with their projects when help is necessary.

Capital Transit Adds $185,000 To Reserves

By S. Oliver Goodman

Continuing to build a cushion for postwar contingencies, the board of Capital Transit Co. yesterday directed the setting aside of another $185,000 from undistributed earnings of the second quarter.

This amount was allocated as follows: $125,000 to the property adjustments reserve, $60,000 to the reserve for postwar requirements.

Directors also voted the usual quarterly dividend of 50 cents a share, payable July 1 to stockholders of record June 15.

The transit board set aside $240,000 in 1943 for a postwar requirements reserve and $500,000 for a property adjustment reserve. This policy was inaugurated last year and has been followed faithfully in the first two quarters this year.

In a recent report President E. D. Merrill indicated that wartime wear on the transit line's equipment has been unusually heavy and that it has been "impossible to maintain the company's property and plant at the customary high standards." It was intimated that an unusual amount of repair and replacement work will be necessary after the war when manpower and material are again abundant. Recognizing this condition two years ago, directors hope to build a substantial monetary cushion for the postwar burden.

Garfinckel Declares Extra of 22½ Cents

Directors of Julius Garfinckel & Co., Inc., yesterday declared a special dividend of 22½ cents a share on common stock in addition to the regular quarterly dividend of 20 cents a share.

This was the first extra dividend in the five-year history of the stock, which was first marketed publicly in September, 1939, at $10 a share. Dividends of 17½ cents a share were paid quarterly through September, 1943, and 20 cents a share paid quarterly since.

Directors also voted the regular quarterly dividend of 34⅜ cents a share on preferred stock. All dividends are payable June 30 to stockholders of record June 15.

Liebold Leaves

Fourth Major Officer Fired By Ford Motor

Detroit, May 25 (AP).—Ernest G. Liebold's connection with the Ford Motor Co. has ended, he said today, because he was discharged. The former personal secretary to Henry Ford, who was once the most powerful figure in the Ford Motor Co., next to its founder, advanced no reason for his discharge. He said merely that "I didn't quit and I didn't resign."

At the Ford offices the only statement was that Liebold no longer was associated with the company.

A bank teller before joining the Ford empire in 1910, Liebold moved up rapidly until, at one time, few persons saw Henry Ford without Liebold's approval. Liebold took a large part in the organization of the Ford peace-ship expedition early in the first World War and was active in the movement to get Henry Ford into politics both as a candidate for United States Senator and as a presidential possibility.

Liebold was the fourth of the earlier Ford associates to leave the company within the last year. A little more than two months ago Charles E. Sorensen, its production genius, was discharged. Last summer A. M. Wibel, long identified with the company's purchasing department, and H. C. Doss, veteran general maneger, left the the organization. Wibel and Doss since have joined the Nash-Kelvinator Corp.
